Social Security Queried

OTTAWA (CP) — In a radical shift from past advice, the Canadian Council on Social Development says governments should no longer pay social benefits such as family allowance and old age security to rich and poor alike.

The council also called today for complete restructuring of Canada's pension system, including a mandatory retirement age of 70 rather than 65, and a better financial deal for women and individuals who want to retire early.

The council is hammering out a major report with the theme that only genuinely needy people should receive such benefits as the family allowance and old age pension.

"We're starting to question the universal application of social programs," council programs director Geoff Norquay told the special Senate committee on retirement.

He said the report, scheduled for release in about six weeks, concludes that government social programs have failed to do the job they were supposed to do — redistribute money to the poor.

"That's a lot of money," Norquay said.

Programs he singled out included family allowance paid to all mothers, old age security paid to all Canadians at age 65 and unemployment insurance paid to jobless persons fitting certain criteria. All are paid regardless of the recipient's other income.

Although the council has not worked out the finer details, it is thinking that the benefits should be taxed back 100 per cent from families with above-average incomes. The family of four cut-off would be about $23,000 while the cut-off for a single person would be about $9,900.

The exception to this would be medical care programs which should remain universal, Norquay said.

Norquay said the problem in the idea is that most people have paid into such programs and can thus claim a right to draw benefits.

"That's a very tricky issue," he said.

However, he also said it is difficult to justify paying benefits to the rich when there are thousands of elderly women across the country living on less than $5,000 a year.

The council report is based on a study of government social programs during the last 15 years. Norquay called it a radical shift in council policy.

In a brief to the committee, the council urged creation of a national organization to represent the needs of the elderly and develop policies to strengthen their standing in society.

The brief, written by economist David Ross, calls on governments to "ultimately" prohibit the forced retirement of those who want to work.

It recommends changes in age of retirement, income status of retirees and improvements in employment and social services for the retired.

The council says workers should be allowed to retire, with pension benefits, before or after age 65 which has become a widely-used, arbitrary cut-off date. Most private and public pension plans do not provide benefit payments until age 65.

The council says other factors should determine retirement age: Years already worked, will or desire to work, job skills and competence.

USC Tops '78 Goal: $3.9M

OTTAWA (CP) — The Unitarian Service Committee (USC) received $3,911,909 in funds and gifts in 1978, it was announced Monday.

The USC said in its annual review that the 1978 total exceeded its original goal.

The generosity of Victoria Times' readers contributed more than $32,000 to the total collected.

Founded in 1944 by Dr. Lotta Hitschmanova, the non-governmental agency provides funds and other aid to needy countries.

Federal and provincial grants totalled $778,271 but 80 per cent of all contributions came from ordinary citizens, the review said.

Storm Adds to U.K. Woes

Times News Services

LONDON — Striking locomotive drivers halted Britain's railroads for the third time in a week today which, coinciding with the worst blizzard in 15 years, left London virtually deserted.

"If you are still in bed, stay there," a BBC commentator told the public. "If not, go back to bed."

The blizzard blocked highways, closed airports, played havoc with bus and underground services.

Tens of thousands of commuters simply abandoned the effort to get to work and stayed home. Most stores and offices were manned only by skeleton staffs, if at all.

The railway shutdown, to be followed by still another Thursday, immobilized the strike-plagued nation even before it had recovered from a 24-hour walkout Monday for higher pay by 1.5 million local government workers.

Although the walkout should have ended early today, thousands of strikers — who are demanding a 40 per cent pay hike on their average $90 a week pay — stayed off the job.

Their unions threatened continued "guerrilla action" of lightning walkouts designed to make life as disagreeable as possible for the rest of the country.

The government estimated today that between 175,000 and 200,000 workers have been laid off so far as a result of an 11 days-old national strike by 100,000 truck drivers, which has blockaded ports and factories and hit food, raw materials and imports and exports.

About 30,000 angry strikers from all over the country held a protest rally in London and marched on Parliament, many chanting "all-out strike." Union leaders warned that disruptions will continue indefinitely in some areas.

Alan Fisher, general secretary of the National Union of Public Employees, warned of "widespread chaos" unless Prime Minister James Callaghan's Labor government approves a base rate of $120 for a 35-hour week for public service workers.

Callaghan, who has refused to declare a national emergency, won a parliamentary debate on his handling of the crisis by a vote of 305 to 201 Monday night.

Shah Cancels Visit

Times News Services

Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi of Iran has decided to postpone indefinitely his planned visit to the United States because of President Jimmy Carter's apparent support for Ayatullah Khomeini, sources close to the monarch said today in Marrakech.

The shah and Empress Farah arrived there Monday to a low-key welcome from Morocco's King Hassan II. Moroccan officials said at the time the shah intended to remain in Morocco for about three days, then fly to the United States.

Members of the shah's entourage said there has been a change of plan, but it was not clear whether the shah intended to remain in Morocco or move to another country.

In Cairo, a spokesman for President Anwar Sadat said the Egyptian leader had invited the shah, who spent the first six days of his "vacation" with Sadat in Aswan, to return.

The spokesman said the shah accepted and told Sadat "he would be glad to spend most of his holidays in Egypt because he considers himself among his family."

Several other countries are being considered, the sources said, including Saudi Arabia, Britain and France.

Arafat In Power Struggle

DAMASCUS (Reuter) — Yasser Arafat is fighting for control of the Palestine Liberation Organization after guerrilla leaders ended a conference today with a bitter power struggle unresolved.

Conference sources said Arafat was being challenged by more radical leaders who want more say in policy-making on the PLO's executive committee.

Meanwhile, reports from Tel Aviv said Palestinian gunners in Lebanon attacked settlements in the northeastern part of the country.

The shelling came a day after a mysterious remote-control truck bomb in Beirut killed a top Palestinian guerrilla official and Arafat aide . (See page 3).

Donut King Probed

RCMP commercial crime officers have seized the books and records of Donut-King Restaurants Ltd., a Victoria-based company involved in franchising a fast-food marketing chain.

A police spokesman said today officers raided nine offices and residences in Victoria and a law office in Vancouver, all on Monday.

The spokesman declined to elaborate on the nature of the investigation but said the company's activities have been under investigation for nearly two months by the RCMP and latterly by Saanich police.

The company was incorporated on Dec. 2, 1977 by Demetrios Psyllakis, of 2576 Estevan.

Psyllakis said today he sold the company last June to George Sheldon Parkhurst, of 2777 Benson Place.

In the past year Donut-King has sold three franchises in Greater Victoria, as well as one in Duncan, Port Alberni and other points north on the Island.

Parkhurst, originally from Belleville, arrived in Victoria two years ago and has been involved in numerous development and franchise companies including Trizak Development, Ye Olde Kingston Car Company Ltd., 471 Trans Canada Holdings Ltd., Donut-King Restaurants Ltd., Donut-King Franchise Services Ltd., Ronvan Equipment Ltd., Ten Mile Developments Corp., and Sy's Chicken Shack Inc.

Tsehum Marina Expansion Killed

A controversial plan to expand a marina in Tsehum Harbor was killed Monday when North Saanich council voted unanimously to turn down all future applications for water leases in the area.

Oak Bay developer Bob Wright, who hoped to nearly double the size of his North Saanich Marina, said today he is extremely disappointed with the outcome.

But he said he will now press on with a plan to build houses on 22 acres of property adjacent to the harbor area.

Wright said he will apply to the B.C. Land Commission to have the land removed from the Agricultural Land Reserve. The property is already zoned for residential development on minimum half-acre lots.

"It's obviously a very desirable site," Westwood said.

Monday night's vote followed a close four-to-three decision by council to reject North Saanich Advisory Planning Commission's majority report on Wright's proposal.

The APC, in its report released two weeks ago, recommended limited marina expansion and cluster-type housing in the area.

Wright earlier promised to dedicate 12 acres of shorefront on Blue Heron Basin and Tsaykum Harbor to the municipality as park land if council approved the plan including an expansion of the marina from 350 berths to about 500 and construction of about 60 dwelling units on the remaining 10 acres.

Wright said, however, the offer will now be withdrawn.

"Obviously there will be no further offering of a nature sanctuary," he said.

"It's too bad. All of that land would have gone to the public as a gift and now it's been lost . . . at least in the short run."

Wright said Westwood had lost sight of the objectives of the development plan and had regarded it as a political fight.

"He (Westwood) showed he was not prepared to listen from day one," Wright said.

Westwood, however, defended the actions of council.

"We're just delivering what the people who elected us want," he said.

He denied the fight was political.

"I've no axe to grind with Wright or anyone. I'm doing what any good municipal politician should be doing . . . listening to the people."

. . . And Now Smoking Fines

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Health Minister Monique Begin announced Monday her department is drafting a bill to enforce non-smoking regulations in public transportation.

The bill, expected in two or three months, would give public carriers the responsibility of enforcing regulations about smoking in non-smoking areas, the minister told reporters.

Begin, who made the announcement at a press conference to kick off National Education Week on Smoking, said the proposed law would also allow carriers to fine customers for disobeying those regulations.

"To avoid creating criminal records for being caught in a non-smoking area with a cigarette, we will shift the responsibility to the carriers," he said.

A department spokesman said the amount customers could be fined has not yet been decided.

Begin, who kicked a pack-a-day habit two years ago, released statistics Monday showing that a majority of Canadians age 15 and older — 58 per cent of the population — are non-smokers.

The number of non-smokers has risen steadily from 50.2 per cent in 1965 and 55.3 per cent in 1974, she announced.

However, the number of teenage girls age 15 or older and adult women who smoke has remained fairly constant while it is men who have been renouncing the evils of nicotine.

Begin said that smoking among males age 20 and over has declined since 1965.

Americans Big on Maggie

By PAUL NICHOLSON
Times Staff

Americans make up almost 90 per cent of the passengers who ride the Princess Marguerite, says a study released today.

In fact, the number of Canadian passengers aboard the government-owned Seattle-to-Victoria ferry was so small — 6.9 per cent — that they were almost outnumbered by riders from the eastern U.S. states of New York, Pennsylvania and Massachusetts at 6.5 per cent.

The survey, taken during a week in mid-July, covered 1,859 persons and found 88.8 per cent were from the United States, 6.9 from Canada and 4.3 from other countries.

Surprisingly, most of the American passengers, 52.5 per cent, were from states other than Washington and Oregon.

The survey also determined 55 per cent of the passengers who boarded in Seattle returned the same day after spending an average of $15 per person in Victoria.

The 45 per cent who stayed one or more nights in Canada spent about $38 per person daily.

Of those interviewed, 98.8 per cent said they felt the fares were reasonable.

The satisfaction with the fare rates led the Vancouver firm that undertook the study to suggest that 1979 fares could increase without unduly affecting load factors.

Tourism Minister Elwood Veitch, however, has given no indication whether he will be recommending higher fares for the money-losing steamship.

Passenger traffic to Victoria on the Marguerite was up 12 per cent over the previous year and she carried six per cent more automobiles, 37 per cent more motorcycles and 26 per cent more bicycles.

The survey determined most hoteliers are apparently unaware that a significant percentage of the passengers remain one night or longer in Canada.

Last summer the Marguerite spent almost $350,000 in the Victoria area on food and beverage purchases and another $350,000 for the vessel's annual refit.

The Marguerite begins its 1979 season May 18.

Franklin Arctic-Bound

The federal transport department tentatively plans to use the $50 million icebreaker Franklin, now being built at Burrard's North Vancouver shipyard, to take the place of the Camsell on this year's western Arctic run.

H.O. Buchanan, the department regional director of marine services in Vancouver, said today the Franklin is due to be completed on March 31 and will then undergo working-up trials.

He said plans for the Franklin to take over the Camsell's Arctic duties this summer have not been finalized but if the Franklin is used, she will leave for the Arctic around July 1.

On completion of the season she will head for the east coast via the Northwest Passage.

Meanwhile, Buchanan said the federal department of supplies and services has called for tenders for a charter vessel to replace the Camsell on her buoy-tending duties.

Servicing of the large navigational buoys is usually carried out in March and April.

He said replacement of the Camsell with a vessel from the east coast has been ruled out through damage to vessels working in that area.

No Seattle Jetfoil Until '85?

A report submitted today to Washington State's Transport Commission recommends there be no jetfoil service between Seattle and Victoria until at least 1985.

The report was prepared by Kern Jacobsen, a planner with the state's department of transportation.

Jacobsen told the Times a seven-week trial run between the two cities last summer was the only economically viable run of the six runs carried out by the Boeing jetfoil.

He said the run to Friday Harbor on San Juan Island had proved more financially successful than the cross-Puget Sound ones.

Jacobsen said, while the Seattle-Victoria run had proven lucrative, his department is more concerned about cross-Sound traffic.

In his report Jacobsen recommends that jetfoil service be reconsidered in three to five years.

"It's definitely an element of our long-range policy," he said.

During the seven-week trial period in 1978 the jetfoil carried more than 61,000 people on 433 trips for 1.5 million miles.

SHARES-FOR-ISLAND PLAN

People are responding to a suggestion they give their provincial government free shares in the B.C. Resources Investment Corp. to a fund to purchase Sidney Island, Esquimalt-Port Renfrew Progressive Conservative candidate Bill Langlois said Monday.

"My phone hasn't stopped ringing," he said. "People want to know how they can do this."

He said people should pledge their shares on forms to be available this weekend at the Hillside Mall where a Save Sidney Island information booth will be set up.

Donors also may write for forms to the Sidney Island Fund at P.O. Box 6007, Station C, Victoria, V8P 5L4, or phone 384-7349.

"I've already completed my form donating my five shares," he said.

Langlois said he's been asked how many shares it will take to buy the island.

"Well, it depends on how much they are worth," he said. "Premier Bennett says they are worth between $10 and $12. The NDP say they are not worth more than $3."

He said if they are valued at $10 each, it would take 50,000 people each donating five shares to raise $3 million. If only one share is donated it would take 300,000 people to raise the same amount.

Driver 'Lucky'

Colwood RCMP said Terrance Lane Cain, of 2373 French, escaped with only facial cuts after his car smashed into a cement abutment, vaulted into a ditch and and landed upside down in three-and-a-half feet of water.

Four passers-by who witnessed the accident managed to heave Cain's car on its side and he was pulled to safety.

STRIKE WILTS LETTUCE CROP

SAN DIEGO (AP) — A strike by farm workers has cut production by more than a third in California's Imperial Valley, where 95 per cent of the U.S. iceberg lettuce crop is grown at this time of year, growers say.

The strike began late last week and spread Monday to four major growers in the valley, said Jim McVicar, a spokesman for the growers.

The union has been negotiating with 28 Imperial Valley and Salinas area growers for about a month. The walkout by 2,000 workers also affects some carrot, broccoli and cabbage growers.

Union workers have been harvesting without a contract since the old pact expired Jan. 1, and a 15-day extension ran out last week, said UFW spokesman Marc Grossman. Negotiations are scheduled to resume Wednesday, but Grossman said the two sides are still far apart.

HOLDS DENTURES FIRM WITHOUT DAILY "FIXINGS"

Snug Cushions hold dentures comfortably tight for weeks

No more "fixings" every morning with messy powders or creams. Even if dentures need "fixing" after every meal, here's important news. Snug cushions restore dentures' holding power so dentures stay comfortably tight for weeks. Snug, the soft, effective temporary aid, forms a "comfort bond" between dentures and gums. Sticks to dentures, not to gums. Rinse, scrub or soak Snug fresh and clean. Easy to remove, but won't wash off or flake away. So, end daily "fixings"! Use Snug to hold dentures comfortably tight for weeks.

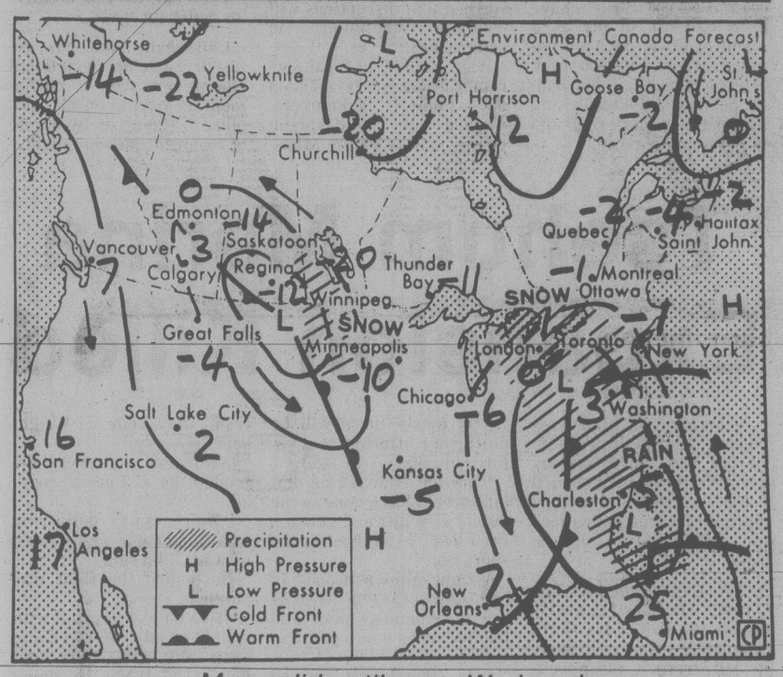

Map valid until noon Wednesday

The next in a series of weather systems has already spread rain onto the north coast today and will spread snow to the central part of the province and rain and snow over the south coasts. Although weakening, it will also bring snow to the southeastern parts of the province this afternoon and tonight. Highs today will be near or above normal because of the warm air forced over the province ahead of the system. During the night the entire system will move to the east of the province and the coastal regions will lie under a colder stream which originates over Alaska. Extensive showers are expected along the coast and some snow flurry activity inland. Cloud cover should remain extensive along the coasts. The interior will have some sunny periods. Temperatures will drop and become below normal in the interior and a little below normal along the coasts.

Freddie Wants Fare Cuts

Times News Services

TORONTO — Sir Freddie Laker says he would like to cut air fares between Canada and Britain, but Canadian authorities won't let him.

Sir Freddie, in Toronto to launch a Canadian subsidiary, said round-trip charters offered to Canadians for a legal minimum price of $310 are available in London for as little as $200.

Canadian Transport Commission regulations prohibit him from undercutting the lowest fare offered by regular commercial airlines, he said.

"We would like to be able to sell tickets for what we want, when we want," Laker said.

The $200 fare out of London is available for seats still unbooked three days before a charter flight departs. In Canada, charter tickets must be booked at least 30 days in advance.

However, Laker praised the CTC for overturning a ruling that prohibited charter passengers originating in London from flying on the same plane with charter passengers originating in Canada.

"I would always ask, which ones are the lepers," he said.

He said the ruling made possible the formation of the subsidiary, Laker Air Travel, which is to handle Canadian charter bookings to Britain beginning May 3. Previously, Suntours Co. acted as middleman.

The airline will offer six charters a week between Toronto and Britain, with service to Vancouver to be added next year.

Arafat Aide Dies in Blast, Israeli Hit Team Blamed

BEIRUT (UPI) — For six years, Israeli secret agents have hunted the man they believed responsible for the 1972 Munich massacre of 11 Israeli athletes.

And Monday, they got him, the PLO says.

A remote-controlled car bomb Monday killed Abu Hassan Salameh, a chief aide to Yasser Arafat, leader of the Palestinie Liberation Organization, a PLO spokesman said.

The spokesman in Damascus, Syria, blamed "Zionist agents" for the blast, which killed Abu Hassan and at least six other people on a West Beirut street crowded with shoppers.

The PLO news agency WAFA said Abu Hassan and four of his aides died when a truck loaded with explosives was detonated by remote control as Hassan's jeep passed by.

Hospital sources said seven people died, including Abu Hassan, and another 11 were injured in the powerful blast.

Arab analysts said the bombing was bound to have a profound impact on Arafat, who apparently considered the Fatah security chief like a son. Abu Hassan was also Arafat's bodyguard.

Abu Hassan, whom Israel blames for the Munich massacre, has long been hunted by the Israelis.

A Moroccan waiter named Ahmad Bushiki was murdered in Lillehammer, Norway, after the Munich massacre by an Israeli hit team that aparently mistook him for Abu Hassan.

The Fatah security chief was in his 30s and married to Georgina Rizk, a former Miss Universe from Lebanon. His wife, six months pregnant at the time of her husband's death, wept as she left the American University Hospital after being informed of the death.

"It was the same kind of device that has been used against the Syrians and against (Fatah military commander) Abu Jihad," said an official at Wafa.

Last November Abu Jihad narrowly missed touching off a remote-controlled blast while driving along a road in south Lebanon.

"I would guess it is the Israelis," the Wafa official said. "Whoever planted that bomb wanted to kill a lot of people it went off at about 4 o'clock and there is always a traffic jam at that place at that time of afternoon.

Some observers said the killing could result in further escalation of the Palestinian-Isaeli shelling battles now heating up in south Lebanon.

'. . .WE WANT TO FORGET'

BONN (AP) — The first showing of Holocaust, a television series about Nazi atrocities, brought a flood of telephone calls to West German television stations offering mixed reactions.

"Reaction at the start of the broadcast was clearly negative," Cologne station announcer Ivo Frenzel said after the first part of the series was shown Monday. "Terrifyingly high was the category of those persons who phoned in to say, 'We want to forget, we don't want to be reminded.'"

Frenzel said many callers said Holocaust gave a one-sided picture of the Germans, and quoted one as saying, "not all of them were Nazis."

He said another asked: "Why wasn't this film made in Germany?"

Every major newspaper carried previews of the telecast, many saying the production trivialized Jewish sufferings by making Nazi atrocities melodramatic.

Some writers said the subject was suitable only for documentaries such as a recent special on the death camps and another on anti-Semitism.

But the Munich daily Sueddeutsche Zeitung praised Holocaust screenwriter Gerald Green, saying he was better informed about "the history of the Third Reich and the typology of the powerful and powerless than many Hollywood authors before him."

The newspaper also said the show's dramatic narrative was more effective than documentaries in portraying the horror of the Nazi atrocities.

The NBC-TV production, for which West German television paid about $600,000, is scheduled for three more two-hour instalments tonight, Thursday and Friday.

Not a Convincing Case

What's good for British Columbia's teachers is good for the children they teach. That was one of the messages delivered on the weekend in Vancouver at a meeting of the B.C. Teachers' Federation task force on declining enrolment. "Defence of our jobs is a defence of children," said BCTF vice-president Al Blakey, who also equated school board budget-cutting with child abuse. And so on in a similarly pompous tone.

While some of its critics have said for years that the BCTF is basically a trade union concerned first, last and always with keeping its members employed, and not the "professional association" primarily concerned with such high-toned matters as teaching standards and educational research that it would like the public to think, it has taken the current crisis of declining enrolment to bring out a strange kind of doublethink among the men and women who educate our children.

The BCTF and its activist leadership want to defeat the commonly held belief that a decline in the numbers of students entering school means fewer teachers are required and therefore a smaller education budget.

Poor, dumb public. According to the teachers' organization, declining enrolment offers a golden opportunity to spend even more money, offering more specialized education needs, reducing class size and teacher-pupil ratios. Heaven forbid that anyone thought fewer students equalled fewer teachers equalled lower costs.

The task force meeting apparently reached a consensus: teachers must fight back and stop being passive while other teachers were laid off and school programs were cut. Political action aimed against the provincial government and school boards was the answer.

The provincial government (as we have noted on numerous occasions) is a valid target of teachers' — and taxpayers' — wrath. At election time it talked about reducing the burden of school costs on the homeowner, but just about everything it has done since has increased that burden, not lightened it. A bigger and bigger share of education costs has been pushed onto the overloaded property tax.

This is one factor, but another element in the reaction of taxpayers against high education costs is a belief that educators have been too lavish in their spending. Too many unnecessary administrators, programs which are frills and not necessities, not enough concentration on providing basic skills.

There was practically a revolution in education accomplished in the decade and a half since Sputnik went up, at a very high cost to the public — special programs and equipment, drastically increased teacher salaries, new buildings. Some of it was worth the money, but equally much is questionable.

Now, after nearly a decade of the new education philosophy what are the practical results? What do parents and the rest of the taxpaying public see for their heavy investment? Forty per cent of high school graduates fail a basic English placement examination at the University of British Columbia — forty per cent of those who are supposedly the cream of the crop, who want to go on to university. And various teachers' groups and professional spokesmen can only prattle about how skilled the students are at "verbalizing."

Teachers have a partially valid case here, but they would convince more people of the rightness of their cause and the necessity to continue pumping money into the schools if they demonstrated that the young people passing out of their care each year in June were really educated.

To use the language of the marketplace which the BCTF has adopted (don't Blakey's remarks sound an awful lot like "What's good for General Motors is good for the country"?), work harder at molding a better product. Then the public might be interested in talking about dollars and cents.

". . . and that's me again . . . on the Golan Heights, skilfully dodging an unprovoked bayonet charge by a UN soldier . . ."

Classic Catch-22

Camosun College council has found itself in a classic Catch-22 situation when it comes to building a new parking lot for the Lansdowne campus.

First, it wanted to build the lot for more than 600 cars on some vacant land at the corner of Lansdowne and Foul Bay Road, but that was strongly opposed by residents of the area. The police departments of Saanich and Oak Bay didn't think much of the idea either, recognizing that the lot would impose a severe traffic burden on the already busy corner.

So the college proposed to move the parking lot onto a parcel of land behind the campus near Ernest and Argyle Streets. Immediately residents protested vehemently, complaining that the land to be blacktopped is an ecologically valuable wood, a home for wildlife and a de facto neighborhood park. They did everything but threaten to lie down in front of the bulldozers.

So this week the college, trying desperately to avoid a confrontation, came up with yet a third set of plans — to move the proposed parking lot away from the most park-like corners of the woods and back close to Foul Bay Road. But practically before the ink was dry on the blueprints, the answer came back from Oak Bay municipality — not a chance of approval. Like the first proposal, or perhaps even more so, it would cause serious traffic problems.

What is a poor college council to do? Various requirements, including those instituted by the municipalities, require it to have so many parking spaces. If it is to go ahead with its badly-needed renovations and expansion, it must use existing parking spaces for the site of a new building — which means it has to find room for new parking spaces.

But while demanding that the parking spaces be created, no one is willing to allow the college to put them in any specific location.

There are alternatives to pouring asphalt over acres of land to achieve parking spaces — for example, a multilevel parkade or even underground parking. But the cost is so much greater than ordinary parking lots that the tax-conscious public would surely be in an uproar if the college were to decide to go that route.

There appears to be no alternative: the Camosun College council will simply have to decide which site is the most suitable — and perhaps whose wrath is the easiest to bear — and go ahead. The alternative is interminable delays in the whole expansion plan which neither it nor the community can afford.

CUSO Que. Wing in Soup

OTTAWA — "Resolution No. 20. That a telegram be sent to the governments (federal and provincial) demanding the liberation of the political prisoners of Quebec. Adopted."

The penmanship of a bunch of Marxist-Leninists, gathered in a garret, Che Guevara posters on the wall and joints being passed around?

No. A formal resolution passed at the recent annual meeting of an organization that gets all its funds — about $3.5 million worth — from the federal government. Its name is SUCO.

SUCO, or Service Universitaire Canadienne Outre-mer, is the Quebec counterpart to, and small brother of, the much better-known CUSO, or Canadian University Service Overseas. Both organizations send trained volunteers to Third World countries — teachers, nurses, doctors, agricultural technicians, community developers, cooperative advisers.

'People's Movement'

In its wayward way, SUCO illustrates perfectly one of the cardinal rules of behavior of government. The rule of the need, when convenient, not to know.

SUCO itself breaches two rules. It exists to send non-political volunteers to work on practical projects in underdeveloped countries. In fact, it expends part of its energies (and part of its federal funds) fighting the cause of "international solidarity" between the "people's movement" overseas and in Quebec.

Almost odder in a way is that SUCO's relationship to the larger CUSO is a working model of "sovereignty-association." Although Prime Minister Trudeau declares he would "never negotiate" sovereignty-association, his government has funded for five years a better case example of it than even Premier Rene Levesque has yet been able to dream up.

SUCO's leftist lean has long been known. Ottawa's response has been to look the other way, and to hope it shuts up.

SUCO's prevailing ideology is pretty plain. A year ago, the Canadian Jewish community was outraged by a SUCO pamphlet that praised the "just struggle" of the Palestinians and damned Israel as a "bastion of imperialism." Arnold Smith, former Commonwealth Secretary, accused SUCO of "prompting separatism in Quebec."

The resolution on Quebec's political prisoners passed by a majority at SUCO's annual meeting last October, was "unfortunate," says SUCO secretary-general Yvon Madore. It got through, he explained, "at the end of a long day." SUCO itself, said Madore, would take no action on the resolution.

At the same meting, SUCO members called for a "war of national liberation" in the Sahara, affirmed "solidarity" for the people of Vietnam and proposed new ties between the "popular movement(s)" in Quebec and the Third World.

As unusual, is SUCO's relationship with CUSO. Until 1973, the placement of overseas volunteers was done by a single organization with anglophone and francophone divisions.

Today, each is sovereign. Each has its own top officer (Madore, CUSO executive director Robin Wilson), own head office (Montreal, Ottawa), its own budgets, administration, staff, volunteers and projects. Each is unilingual. Although CUSO and SUCO volunteers work together in Mozambique and Central America, CUSO has more extensive working ties with several European agencies than with its Quebec associate.

SUCO and CUSO come together only at the top. A board of directors (13 from CUSO, 11 from SUCO and one university representative) receives funds from CIDA and divides them between the two agencies. Of the federal pie, SUCO gets one-third, although it sends out only about one-fifth the total number of volunteers (96 out of 449, this year).

Pick a Fight?

"We wish CUSO would pluck up its courage and crack down on SUCO," a top government aide official told me. "It's being used as a patsy. CUSO, which has a good reputation, legitimizes SUCO and protects it."

Within CUSO, pressure is building up for a showdown. Budget restraint together with the devalued dollar have cut back CUSO's volunteer contingent from 500 in the late 1960s to 353 this year. Each of SUCO's political extravagances now costs CUSO money, and volunteers.

The place where the buck should stop is where it starts — Ottawa. Instead, Ottawa is looking the other way. No marks for guessing why. "Quebec, of course," an official told me. "Do we pick a fight with a Quebec organization, or do we admit we can't control it?" Tough eh, with a referendum on sovereignty-association coming up.

We're Dwarfed

G. W. Frost, in his letter Start Screaming (Times, Jan. 13), places the blame for devaluation of the Canadian dollar, and many other financial ills of the nation, on the labor unions. He ends up by saying: "I, for one, would like to know who is running this country, the unions or the government?"

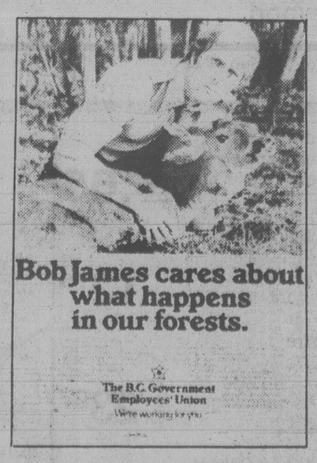
The answer to this question is: Neither one. It is big business, the large corporations, who are running this country.

During the past three years there was a very tight lid put on wages and wages were allowed to rise an average of not more than seven per cent a year over those three years. Despite the pleas of the labor unions, no lid or effective control was placed on prices or corporation profits. As a result, prices rose by nine per cent per year or more (on the average), while many corporations, protected by wage control and the lack of price controls, reported profit increases of from 30 per cent to 90 per cent per year.

As an illustration, in B.C. while wages in the forest industry rose about 21 per cent over the three year period, forest products rose in price by at least 30 per cent over the same period. MacMillan Bloedel had a tremendous increase in profits this past year. Who then is "damaging the export market," or "pricing the labor force out of a job?"

There are times when many of us become impatient with the demands or the actions of powerful labor unions. It is the greed in the world which is to blame for many of our problems. But certainly the labor unions, or their members, do not have a monopoly on that commodity.

When it comes to their power to influence governments, either federal or provincial, labor unions are dwarfed by the power of the large corporations. — J. Philip Fawcett, 57 Wellington Street.



'Vicious Attack'

In response to your Jan. 8 editorial, Slick and Melodramatic.

Your editorial writer is another living proof that ivory towers do indeed exist, quite separate and apart from the real world that the rest of us have to live in.

To dismiss our attempts to offset — in a rather gentle and low key manner — the constant attacks that public employess are under as being slick and melodramatic is naive in the extreme. It does however, firmly establish your editorial bias.

The fact that the B.C. Government Employees' Union is spending over $18,000 in the Times in order to tell our membership's story is part of the real world in the same way that the corporate and business ads are.

Your editorial also ridiculed our explanation for using a mix of professional models and membership in the campaign. Your remark that fear of reprisals against the membership was "far-fetched" is another indication of the incredible naivete and ivory towerism that can exist in the editorial function.

One of our Victoria correctional service members appeared at a 1971 Union Convention in a convict outfit, complete with ball and chain. He was attempting to point out that provincial public employees did not at that time have bargaining rights. Upon his return to Victoria, he was severely reprimanded and a letter was placed on his file, no doubt affecting his future promotions.

Fair editorial comment backed by a knowledge of the facts is one thing, for the Times to use its editorial columns to viciously attack a working people's organization from whom they accept paid advertising is quite another.

I haven't noticed you editorially attacking other major advertisers, but then, we are not part of the influential business community. We are merely a union, and I suppose in your editorial opinion that makes us fair game — John L. Fryer, General Secretary, B.C. Government Employees Union.

And Here at Home?

A few days ago the media gave ample coverage of the first group of Vietnamese refugees "the boat people" who were welcomed to Canada, given good warm clothes, food and shelter.

On Jan. 12, the Times had a few paragraphs about the dreadful plight of our own native people, the Indians of the Northwest Territories. Ravaged by tuberculosis, living in incredible conditions of squalid poverty, and, according to the newspaper, in some instances 16 persons sharing one room.

Don't we have a department of Indian Affairs that is established to take care of the first Canadians? Aren't there hospitals and sanitariums where these people can be treated and restored to health?

We hear and read so much about human rights, about adequate medical services available to those in need of them, about all other social legislation concerning housing, education and so on.

After reading this article we wonder how true our government's devotion to human rights really is.

Surely our department of Indian Affairs should examine the situation without delay and in close co-operation with the Indian population of the NWT. It is very sad that individuals who, in fragile canoes of long ago braved the currents, the inclement weather, the solitude and loneliness of the north, and survived, and now decimated by illness and poverty. It doesn't seem that charity begins at home. — E. J. Lattes, 432-200 Dallas Road.

Superb Beaches

Sidney Island, within sight of Victoria and just a short distance from Vancouver presents the provincial government with a unique opportunity to acquire a major marine-oriented park close to the province's two largest cities.

This area has superb beaches, interesting and important wildlife habitats and great recreational potential. I think it may be likened in importance to the setting aside of Beacon Hill and Stanley Parks in the last century. I doubt that many people today feel that establishing these two parks was a mistake.

The government should be encouraged to purchase this small but highly important island for a provincial park. Considering its potential, its cost is small indeed. Surely funds can be made available for such a significant recreational area. — Robert D. Turner, 962 Lovat Avenue.

Bastion Theatre

The wide range of interests, ages and past experiences of the average audience in Victoria makes it inevitable that personal opinions will vary as to the merits of any theatrical offering presented. I feel it is arid, therefore, to use your columns for a debate on the quality of the recent production of The Incredible Murder of Cardinal Tosca.

However, your correspondent's statement (Tasteless; Times, Jan. 8) that "more and more people are unwilling to take a chance on plays offered to Victorians" purports to be factual and cannot be allowed to pass without comment. I understand that the number of subscribers to the Bastion theatre has almost tripled since last season. Furthermore, an extra matinee of Cardinal Tosca was presented on Jan. 6 because of full houses. These are facts. Neither of them suggests audience disenchantment.

May I add that I regret the Times' decision to give such unusual prominence to a very derogatory letter. I am sure we can all agree that the Bastion theatre company is doing an excellent job in its attempt to cater to as many segments of the community as possible. You or I may not enjoy every play we see, but let us at least admit the skill with which the current season has been balanced and fashioned in order to entertain and to provoke us, in all our variety. — Maryla Waters, 1031 Falkland Road.

Next Day? Hah!

What is happening and where is the service and reliability of our postal service gone? The cost has increased to cover labor costs and computerized and electronic controlled sorters and mail boxes state if it's in the box by 10:15 a.m., it's delivered next day. What a farce. I have letters from Regina that took eight days to reach Victoria, also three airmail letters mailed in England Nov. 17 arrived here in Victoria Jan. 4.

I investigated and was told that mail from the UK lands in Mirabel, Quebec, is sorted electronically and forwarded to various points in Canada. If this is the service we have achieved with all this modern technology we are better to go back to the old system and cut down on postage costs or eliminate it and go to courier service and quality and efficiency of service might return. — Mrs. K. Coupal, 638 Baxter Avenue.

U.S. Finds Coca Chewing Has Tough Roots

By LAWRENCE LIPPMAN
The Washington Post

LA PAZ — Unable to wipe out cocaine at home, the United States is betting millions of dollars that the solution is the source; the coca plant of South America. But there is growing alarm in Peru and Bolivia that the "decadent" use of the derivative drug cocaine in modern European and American societies threatens thousands of years of Andean tradition.

The U.S. moves may in fact be tempered, at least in Bolivia, by caution from American experts assigned to research coca control and its consequences. Eliminating coca would be as difficult as it could be politically risky, say the investigators, who are working in two projects, one agricultural, the other historical and anthropological.

To Combat Cold

Moreover, if coca were drastically limited, some critics claim, big-money cocaine interests, widely believed to be powerful in both countries as well as in cocaine-consuming nations, invariably would get what was available. Peasants and $2-a-day miners, who chew coca leaves to combat cold, fatigue and hunger and for many social and religious rituals, they say, would be the losers.

Among U.S. representatives here, the Agency for International Development (AID) seems to be leading the retreat from hopes for voluntary, drastic crop reduction. AID is in charge of agricultural studies designed to steer coca farmers to other crops, such as coffee and citrus, with better technology.

The key project, started in 1976 by a University of Florida team, used to be called "coca substitution." But AID subdirector Stephen C. Wingert says, "After the project was under way, people came to the conclusion that there was no real substitution, no crop to beat it."

One campesino in the Yungas, a province of steep, green subtropical mountinsides not far from here, says that region's high-quality coffee, the next best cash crop, brings $50 for 100 pounds once a year. Coca, which has been raised there since long before the Incas, brings $160 per 100 pounds three times a year.

Heavy Spending

AID is now spending nearly $6 million (for 1975-80) on agricultural studies and other preliminary economic development research that could lead to heavy spending to help the switch away from coca. The State Department may spend another $6 million during the same period on law enforcement and coca control in Bolivia.

In Peru, where U.S. narcotics officials (other than the Drug Enforcement Administration) are just getting organized, $700,000 to $1 million reportedly will be spent this year on narcotics control aid, mainly for vehicles and communications equipment.

Even though Bolivia ranks second, after Peru, in coca production, it has been the site of the studies as well as the most advanced law enforcement aid program.

Peru, however, has decreed its own drastic measures to begin wiping out coca. When a group of U.S. congressmen arrived to discuss narcotics last year, Peruvian officials revealed plans for stiff, wide-ranging drug laws, decreed later in the year and last spring. Whether the country is serious about eradicating coca — the law calls chewing a "grave social problem" — or was just snowing the congressmen, is still debated there. But reaction to the law was strong in Lima and in Cuzco, a major coca production and consumption centre.

Lima neurosurgeon Fernando Cabieses, a longtime defender of coca chewers who is working with Yale medical researchers on a coca project, says, "We don't think coca chewing causes damage or is bad at all. I don't see how or why we should try to prohibit it. But this is about the 50th time Peru has passed a law, and I don't think it will ever be enforced."

The AID team cites a Harvard nutritional analysis that shows coca to contain relatively high amounts of calories, proteins, carbohydrates, fibre and ash, and to be an important source of calcium, phosphorus, iron, vitamins and riboflavin, although coca isn't a food substitute. The relationships between coca and fatigue, hunger and thirst have yet to be thoroughly explained, although past research indicates that Indians' claims that such sensations are eased by coca "appear to be based on real, albeit slight, physiological reactions," such as slightly increasing heart rate and help in maintaining core body temperature.

Cocaine is one of about 14 alkaloids in coca (other examples of alkaloids: coffee's caffeine, tobacco's nicotine), and showed up in Yale's blood tests on soldiers and peasants while chewing.

A University of Manitoba research team believes ecgonine, another substance in coca, may be even more important, acting like atropine, a drug used to treat hypoglycemia, or low blood sugar caused by poor metabolism of carbohydrates. AID team members say that while food generally is abundant, peasants' diets are often high in potatoes and other carbohydrates and low in proteins, so coca may be important in "carbohydrate management," maintaining their blood sugar-energy levels.

What AID is finding is that coca chewing seems to be even more widespread in the Andean region than expected.

Use of the leaf in the form of tea has cut across social barriers, soothing upset stomachs in the best of La Paz homes as well as in fine hotels and the U.S. embassy cafeteria, even though many people in Peru and Bolivia believe chewing the leaf is harmful and typical of "uncivilized" Indians.

But for the Indians — roughly half the population in each country — coca represents more than just a remedy for virtually any ailment. The Quechuas, for example, according to a California research team working near Cuzco, believe coca is a gift from the Virgin Mary and provides a link to the land. The land is sensitive to coca's power, thus making coca essential for a good harvest.

Strict social codes prevent overuse of coca, says Aquiles Palomino, one of the anthropologists working near Cuzco. Peasants use a little more during heavy work, less when herding. Miners in Bolivia offer coca to the "Tio" (uncle), spiritual owner of the vein, to avoid disasters. Besides providing sustenance on long foot-journeys, coca is offered at roadside shrines and is important during wakes.

Deeply Imbedded

Its use in fiestas and normal social conduct is good manners. A peasant couldn't consider asking to borrow a neighbor's plow without offering coca before the discussion. Coca use is so deeply embedded in Andean culture that observers predict strong, perhaps violent, reaction if their supply ever is cut off.

Most think it would be especially foolish to cut off coca to Bolivia's poorly paid and activist miners. One police official was quoted as saying that 60,000 Bolivian miners need the leaf for their work, and "we depend greatly on them."

Some point out that Peru and Bolivia have been under pressure before to eradicate coca, and even agreed to wipe out the leaf within 25 years of an international narcotics convention signed in 1961 — but did nothing.

The "cocaine boom" in the United States and heightened interest among U.S. narcotics officials and congressmen, however, may put a new light on the international pressure.

Observes California anthropologist Duane Metzger, who is working near Cuzco: "You could argue that the so-called drug problem in the United States is ultimately going to have to be dealt with there."

THE ECONOMIST

BOGOTA — A year ago, Toribio Gomez, a peasant in Colombia's Magdelena province, was offered an advance payment of $25 by some city men to sow a sackful of their seed on his five acres. They paid Toribio more for the first crop six months later than he had earned in the previous two years, and taught him better harvesting techniques.

One dawn, just as the next crop was being harvested, 12 policemen with carbines appeared. When Toribio could not produce the $250 they demanded, they arrested him, and he is now in a cell facing a sentence of up to 12 years' imprisonment. With a backlog of two million cases clogging the Colombian legal system, he will wait a long time for his trial.

There are at least 150,000 Toribios in Colombia, supporting their families with sub-contracted marijuana plots or working as field hands for $8 a day in the immense plantations of the Guajira region on the Caribbean coast. The attorney-general's office recently reckoned that 175,000 acres had been newly planted with cannabis in the foothills of the Sierra Nevada de Santa Marta, yielding a quality product worth over $200 an ounce to connoisseurs.

Arua Viku, a young leader of the Arhuaco Indians from farther up the sierra, complains that his tribe is being torn apart by the financial pressure to get into the drug business.

Colombia suffers from the marijuana bonanza in other ways too: the corruption brought by an illicit national income estimated at between $1 billion and $4 billion; and the violence in its wake.

Colombia's new president, Julio Cesar Turbay Ayala, has placed drastic restrictions on travel in the Guajira-Santa Marta region in a bid to cut down on the traffickers.

If these controls are rigorously enforced, the Guajira region will lose its primacy in the marijuana trade . . . But it may be even more difficult to restrict planting in the vast Amazon basin, or on Colombia's huge eastern plains. Marijuana production is already well under way in both areas.

Many Colombians argue that marijuana production should be legalized, to alleviate its socially destructive side-effects. The latest measures show that the government does not agree. But the trade may be uncontrollable.

That Out-of-Touch Feeling

russell baker

"I cannot pinpoint with certainty the moment at which I lost touch," writes a middle-aged friend. "It wasn't when everybody was eating Colonel Sander's Kentucky-fried chicken because I distinctly remember eating the stuff with some regularity in those days and thinking nothing of it.

"But somewhere between there and here, if I may use Joseph Heller's ominous title, something happened. Driving up the East Coast last year, I suddenly realized that I had never eaten a Big Mac. By that time Big Macs had been eaten by precisely told hundreds of millions, but I still hadn't consumed my first.

"Pausing outside Baltimore, I ate one, hoping to re-establish community with the American reality. It obviously didn't work because I haven't eaten a Big Mac since, although as hamburgers go the Baltimore Big Mac was not a total loser. It just seemed, well, unnecessary.

"Too many things had begun to seem unnecessary. All America was watching Archie Bunker, and I was still asking people who Archie Bunker was. It's not that I'm a television snob either. When still in touch with American reality, I never missed an instalment of Perry Mason and though Gunsmoke never really fetched me, I could do a passable imitation of Festus being laconic with Matt Dillon.

"I could even make weak gags based on television commercials, had a hundred switches on 'Mother, I'd rather do it myself,' and knew the distinction between an Excedrin headache and twice as much stomach acid. But something happened.

"Just the other day, reading a list of the most popular shows on the tube, I suddenly realized that I had never seen Laverne and Shirley, Three's Company, Happy Days, Mork and Mindy or Love Boat, had never heard anybody talk about them and, in fact, hadn't the least idea of what any of them was about.

"Worse, I didn't want to know. I didn't want to go to the King Tut exhibit either, despite the fact that it was all sold out. When I was in touch with American reality, I always wanted to go to shows that were all sold out, even if I didn't want to see them, because I enjoyed lording it over people who hadn't been able to get in.

"I have seen shows that were all sold out at which the only available seat aimed my line of sight straight into the theatre wings and, though I saw more of the stage hands than the actors, I was satisfied because I had been present at the show everybody was talking about. Then something happened.

"Nowadays, the minute I hear a show is all sold out, I instantly decide that I don't want to see it and never think of it again. Same thing with greatest games ever played. I can still tell you about Unitas and the Colts beating the Giants in overtime, about the Bobby Thompson home run, the Don Larsen perfect game. Then something happened.

"Reading about the Super Bowl the other day, I realized that I had gone out of my way to avoid every single greatest game ever played for four or five years. Recently a man in his 40s got to talking about the Yankees-Red Sox playoff game last fall and pronounced it the greatest game ever played. I had seen the game, which was excellent in fact, but hadn't realized it was the greatest ever played and found myself disliking it a little now that it had been reduced to the status of the King Tut exhibit and Laverne and Shirley.

"I didn't see Jaws, either. Not that I didn't revel in film blood at one time. Randolph Scott pumping lead into the Dalton boys left me ecstatic before I lost touch, but something happened. For several years I have carefully avoided paying $3 to witness realistic imitations of people being eaten by beast, tortured by sadists or beheaded in close-ups by guillotines, Samurai swords or speeding automobiles.

"There are several dangers in being out of touch with the country. Children hold me in contempt, I've lost the ability to talk to the masses of people who are in touch — how is it possible for anybody to sustain a conversation about the Carter administration? Yet, in-touch people do — and I worry a lot about the world's passing me by.

"To be out of touch, after all, is a kind of death. Here are all these things that engross millions — Big Macs, Laverne and Shirley, greatest games ever played, Jaws, King Tut — and my ability to share the excitement is dwindling to zero.

"When television is the subject and I say 'Mother, I'd rather do it myself,' people break off the conversation abruptly. When everyone else is talking about A Chorus Line and I have to drag in Oklahoma!, I feel myself being silently scratched off invitation lists. Never had a Big Mac? This bird must be an elitist. Never mind about that Kentucky fried chicken, that was then, Buster — now is now.

"It's almost enough to make me tune in Laverne and Shirley next time around, but not quite. Why is staying in touch such hard work once you're grown up?"

Looking for an

RRSP?

Bank of Montreal will fit a Plan to your future.

Come in now, and don't miss out on the tremendous benefits of a Bank of Montreal RRSP.

Money in an RRSP is money in your pocket.

With a Bank of Montreal RRSP, the money you save for tomorrow, saves you taxes today. For instance, if your income is $15,000* per annum, and you make the maximum RRSP contribution, your tax bill is reduced by almost 38%. (*See our brochure for full details or ask your Bank of Montreal manager.)

New FirstBank® Retirement Term Deposits work for a firm future.

FirstBank Retirement Term Deposits are a flexible way to earn a high fixed rate of interest. The rate is one of the highest available, and is fixed for the term (1-6 years) you choose. But that doesn't mean your money is tied up.

A Retirement Term Deposit may be withdrawn at any time at reduced rates of interest.

The best costs less.

The Bank of Montreal charges no sales commissions, makes no charges for opening or closing a Plan (there is a 2% fee for amounts deposited less than 90 days), or for changing from one Plan to another. There is a small trustee fee for registering your Plan, and an administration fee on our Special Retirement and U.S. Retirement Accounts.

It's easy to start with an RRSP Loan.

You can take advantage of RRSP tax savings even if you're short of cash with a FirstBank RRSP Loan. The interest you pay on a loan for your own Plan is tax-deductible in the year in which you pay it.

A stitch in time saves taxes.

Remember that the deadline for RRSP contributions deductible from 1978 taxable income is March 1, 1979, so drop in and see your Bank of Montreal manager today.

A fitting choice for your financial future.

ACCOUNTANT

Victoria based company in real estate development, insurance brokerage and other industries requires a recently graduated Chartered Accountant to assume responsibility for most accounting functions. Reporting to the Comptroller, the Accountant's duties will include installation and maintenance of systems (with future computerization a possibility), preparation of financial reports to management and project investors, supervision of staff and maintenance of relations with banks. In addition there will be various special projects that will require the Accountant's input.

The successful applicant will be a people-oriented, self-starting individual, and the salary will be commensurate with qualifications. Prospects for advancement are excellent.

ROBERT CARATE

Mr. Lionel R. Singlehurst, Senior Executive Vice-President of Mohawk Oil Co. Ltd. is pleased to announce the appointment of Robert Carate to the position of Vice-President, Centennial Transport Ltd. Centennial is the transport division of Mohawk Oil and is responsible for the distribution of petroleum products from B.C. to Western Ontario.

Mr. Carate has been associated with Centennial Transport since 1955 and has seen it grow to its present size of 20 tanker trucks.

Fish Plants Receive Backing

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — The Newfoundland government has established a Crown corporation with a mandate to find ways to make inshore fish processing plants year-round operations.

It is expected that the non-profit Fish Procurement and Distribution Corporation will concentrate on finding offshore species that are not not normally used at the inshore plants, according to Walter Carter, Newfoundland's fisheries minister.

The corporation's main function will be to oversee operations at a planned superport trawler base at Harbour Grace, Nfld.

The port will serve as an operations centre for fleets using both frozen and unfrozen fish to be stored for later distribution to seasonallyidle fish processing plants.

Carter said the corporation would not compete with private companies, but would seek to increase production and encourage expanded harvesting.

Until the project is completed, the corporation will co-ordinate demand and surplus stocks with freezer capacity in hopes of putting more people to work for longer periods of time.

BONDS

TORONTO (CP) — Prices were fractionally higher in active trading on the Canadian bond market Monday. The short end of the market was up 10 cents. Mid-, long-term, and provincial issues rose one-quarter of a point. Corporate issues gained one-eighth of a point. Day-to-day money was available at 12½ per cent.

Bennett Attacks Bigness

VANCOUVER (CP) - Premier Bill Bennett called Monday night for a return to the pioneer spirit of individual ownership which he said originally attracted the poor but ambitious to North America.

Bennett, continuing a personal campaign against bigness—big business, big government and big labor—told an appreciative Vancouver Board of Trade audience that now is the time to battle trends which are upsetting the North American dream.

As governments and other groups in society become more powerful, rights and opportunities for individuals are being lost, the premier said.

"It's time now to pause and reflect on the North American dream and to see if unacceptable trends can be reversed."

He called for governments to provide modern solutions to the problem while patting himself on the back for recently introducing a program to distribute shares of government-owned British Columbia Resources Investment Corporation to qualified residents of the province.

Bennett said the people who came to Canada years ago would be saddened by recent developments. They did not come to this country to be tenants in their own land.

"I want to see this province owned by individuals," he said.

Fight Back, Teachers Urged

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia's teachers must become politically active if they are to keep their jobs during periods of declining enrolment and cuts to school board budgets, says an official of the B.C. Teachers' Federation.

Lynne Hampson, head of the federation's task force of declining enrolment, said teachers have created negative attitudes towards themselves and education because they have refused to fight back.

Hampson told 200 teachers attending a weekend conference on declining enrolment that teacher involvement in a political action program is essential.

"There's a possibility we can offset hostility by the public if we are serious in our intention to bring pressure to bear on this government," he said.

"What's wrong with protecting our jobs? Defence of our jobs is a defence of children."

Enrolment in Vancouver schools is declining by about four per cent a year and is expected to continue falling for at least another 10 years.

WORKMATES SPLIT $100,000 PRIZE

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two Vancouver-area men, who have been splitting the cost of 10 Western Express lottery tickets for the last two years, are sharing $100,000 they won on a ticket in the Jan. 19 draw, a lottery spokesman said Monday.

The winners, Herbert Kemp, of Burnaby, and John Wilson, of New Westminster, are co-workers at a lock company in Burnaby, the spokesman said.

Other $100,000 winners in British Columbia are: Peter Martin, of the north coast community of Kitimat, who held a ticket on the Jan. 17 draw and Michael Coles, of Burnaby, who won in the Jan. 10 draw.

Coles said he plans to take a trip to England to visit his brother.

Second Grit Enters Race

VANCOUVER (CP) — A 51-year-old Aldergrove contractor said Monday he will seek the leadership of the British Columbia Liberal party.

Hugh Chesley, owner of an excavating business in the Fraser Valley community, enters the race against Jev Tothill, an educational television co-ordinator from the Vancouver Island community of Duncan, who declared his candidacy last week.

Gordon Gibson, former party leader, announced his resignation last week to take a position in Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau's office and to seek a federal seat.

Chesley, campaign manager in the 1949 federal election for C. D. Howe, former minister of trade and commerce, said he has not decided which riding in which he will seek a provincial seat.

Pilot Error Blamed

STEWART (CP) — A coroner's inquiry Monday blamed pilot error for a collision between two helicopters Jan. 14 in which one of the pilots was killed and seven people injured near this northwestern British Columbia community.

Coroner William Ross recommended all helicopter pilots be required to wear protective head gear and that no helicopter be allowed to land within 91 metres of another helicopter.

John Suttar, 31, a Stewart man employed by Vancouver Island Helicopters, was killed when his machine with six passengers aboard collided with another helicopter on the ground.

Suttar was ferrying film crews working in the Stewart area on the movie Bear Island.

RCMP Attitude Irks Teachers

The 23,000-member Canadian Association of University Teachers said experiences in the last 20 years indicate that the force may not know the difference between legitimate dissent and illegal subversion.

The observation was made in a brief heard today by the federal royal commission into RCMP wrongdoing.

Many academics believed the security service and its military equivalent were trying to enforce a Victorian morality that no longer existed.

"The security forces have sometimes argued that the sexual activities of individuals may make them liable to blackmail," the association said. "This is true only if the consequences of the individual's actions, if made public, will inevitably result in the loss of his or her job.

"If this is not the case, there is not much leverage for the blackmailer. It should be made clear by the government, therefore, that neither divorce, cohabitation without marriage nor homosexuality will result in the loss of a job or a security clearance."

Many academics also felt the RCMP equated left-wing politics with subversion. Security forces had tried in the 1960s to recruit informers among students campaigning for nuclear disarmament. In the 1970s, the Waffle group in the New Democratic Party apparently was regarded as subversive.

Teachers feared that legal political activity of this type was being used in secret security reports to keep qualified people from getting government jobs.

The same was true of alleged surveillance of Grace Hartman when she ran for president of the Canadian Union of Public Employees. It had also been suggested the RCMP infiltrated unions and fed information to employers.

Mr. Justice David C. McDonald, chairman of the royal commission, was urged to recommend that legal political parties and unions not be infiltrated or watched by the RCMP unless specific charges against individuals were under investigation.

Academic run-ins with the force during the last 20 years suggested little RCMP awareness of the importance of civil liberties, the association said.

It recommended that the RCMP and the military place more emphasis on educating agents about civil rights "and the nature of legal dissent in Canadian society."

The association supported university training for security personnel but not if these personnel were also carrying out general surveillance of teachers and students.

Schreyer Launches Into His New Duties

OTTAWA (CP) — Edward Schreyer is wasting no time in assuming his new duties as the 22nd Governor-General since Confederation.

Only a day after being invested as the Queen's representative, the former Manitoba premier today receives the credentials of about 130 members of the diplomatic corps, including about 40 ambassadors and high commissioners accredited to Canada but living in the United States.

Although diplomats normally present their credentials only to the head of state — Canada's is Queen Elizabeth — the Governor-General is authorized to act on her behalf.

The reception by the nation's new number one host and hostess is only one of several formal, stylized events this week at the 141-year-old Rideau Hall, vacated Sunday night by retiring Jules Leger and his wife, Gaby.

When Lily Schreyer, the new chatelaine of the rambling stone mansion on an 88-acre wooded lot, had her first tour of the house, she exclaimed she felt a little like Cinderella.

And true to the fairy tale analogy, the Schreyers were driven Monday from Parliament to the house across Sussex Drive from Prime Minister Trudeau's residence in an open, horse-drawn carriage.

Three-and-a-half-year-old Toban, the youngest of four Schreyer children, squirmed throughout the hour-long ceremony in the Senate chamber and was not amused by the prospects of sitting still again for a photo session with Trudeau and the cabinet.

The energetic tyke has already become the darling of newspaper photographers as they try to capture every yawn and funny face he makes during the otherwise sobre affairs associated with his father's appointment.

Postie Off Gov't Hook

OTTAWA (CP) — The government has been refused leave to prosecute a letter carrier for alleged illegal strike activity because it tried to abuse a procedure of the Public Service Staff Relations Board.

In a recent ruling, the board rejected the government's application for leave to prosecute Alexander Power, president of Local 1 of the Letter Carriers Union of Canada.

After a brief illegal strike at the end of July, the government sought leave Aug. 29 to prosecute Power. On Sept. 5, the government withdrew the application. Around that time, contract negotiations were being conducted.

Following the resolution of the contract dispute that had led to the illegal strikes, the government again applied for leave to prosecute Power.

The board said it seems "the employer improperly, if innocently, has exploited a procedure of the board for its own tactical purposes."

"Whether the decision to withdraw the first application had an impact on the future conduct of the parties in their negotiations is not, in our view, relevant," the board ruled.

"What is significant is that the intention of the employer was to influence the path that the negotiations were to follow. Once that purpose was achieved and a degree of normalcy in the parties' relationship was established, the only inference . / . that can be drawn from these events is that the employer reserved the right to reinstitute these proceedings."

The board rejected the government's reapplication on Dec. 11 for leave to prosecute because the government had tried to implicate the board "in a course of action affecting the parties' efforts at the bargaining table."

However, the board added that in issuing its ruling it did not condone the instigation of illegal strike action "if indeed the allegations are true."

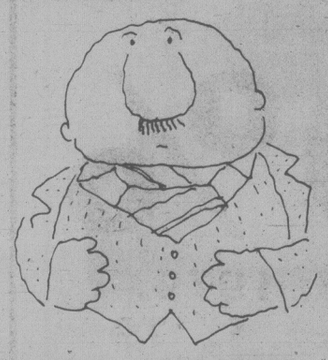
If you've bought an RRSP, maybe you've made a mistake.

Did you purchase your RRSP at the usual place just because it was convenient?



Many people consider buying RRSP's a matter of convenience. But when you invest only once a year in an RRSP and the outcome of that decision will affect your entire retirement, you owe it to yourself to seek out all the options.

Royal Trust offers six RRSP options. For example, your guaranteed interest returns can vary like a savings account or be guaranteed for 5 years. You can invest in a bond fund, or a mortgage fund. You can participate in our Canadian common stock fund. Or, you can have a self-directed plan.

The choice is yours.

Did you put this year's RRSP deposit in your own name again, rather than your spouse's?

Under current regulations, you and your spouse will each be allowed up to $1000 of retirement income after age 65 without paying any tax. You can now make all or part of your allowable annual RRSP contribution in your spouse's name and still claim it as a deduction from your taxable income. That way you get the tax deduction now, and you both may claim a $1000 deduction later.

Spousal RRSP's make a lot of sense.

Did you pay a commission to buy your RRSP?

The amount of dollars available for your retirement is dependent on how much is actually invested each year. If you pay a commission, less goes into your account. That doesn't have to be, and it doesn't happen when you buy a Royal Trust RRSP.

Did you make a big mistake?

If you haven't made this year's contribution, you can still avoid these potential mistakes. Talk things over with Royal Trust first.

If you have already made this year's contribution, we can still help. Most RRSP's can be easily transferred without affecting your annual allowable contribution or income tax status. If you agree that a Royal Trust RRSP is better for you than your present plan, we'll have it quickly switched over.

And don't miss depositing for the 1978 tax year because of a lack of funds. Talk to us about a Tax Saver Loan. Your tax savings alone could more than offset your interest costs.

You'll make no mistake by picking up your free RRSP booklet from your nearest Royal Trust branch.

Saanich Blueprint Picture Brightens

Saanich municipality's prospects for giving birth to its redrafted community plan later this year — after a long and difficult pregnancy of more than three years — looked somewhat brighter Monday night.

The first in what is to be a series of monthly meetings of the lands, planning and housing committee, each dealing with a handful of specific subjects, completed its allotted tasks despite intensive scrutiny and analysis by aldermen and citizens alike.

Virtually every statement of goal, objectives and policies under the chapter headings of agriculture, economic development, environment and urban growth was dissected and discussed in minute detail, to sift out every possible nuance of meaning.

It was a long, ponderous process but undertaken — by Saanich standards — in an atmosphere of relative harmony.

The only exception came when committee chairman Ald. Sandy Noel chided a Cordova Bay Association spokesman for adopting what he called a negative approach to the plan formulation process.

The association's representative, Ann Moffatt, claimed that the plan as it has been redrafted is not specific enough.

"We recognize that the intention is for a broad brush plan, but in this one it seems we just have a broad brush and a canvas, with the picture still to be painted," she said.

"There seems to be a whole section missing — one that states specifically how much, where and when to each subject addressed."

Noel said he hoped other community groups would not approach the plan in an equally negative frame of mind.

The committee's next meeting on the community plan Feb. 27 will discuss housing, commerce, transportation and municipal services.

Under the fastest of three alternative schedules drawn up by the planning department, a public hearing on the draft plan could be held as early as June 25. Failing that, other possible dates for a hearing could be July 5 or Sept. 24.

CURBSIDE PICKUP NOT POPULAR

Saanich residents apparently aren't wildly enthusiastic about the municipal engineer's proposal to eliminate the traditional back yard garbage pickup and introduce the curbside collection of cans.

An official says a poll on the subject is running about 2 to 1 against the proposed change, with most residents claiming any cost saving would be wiped out by the necessity for cleanup crews to follow garbage trucks around the municipality.

Parolee Jailed In Store Theft

The maximum term in a provincial jail was imposed Monday in Victoria county court on a man who stole two stereo sets while on parole from Alberta.

Patrick Daniel Nicholson, 21, was sentenced to two years less a day for taking the sets from Woolco department store, 3601 Douglas, Dec. 20, 1977, carrying each one separately from the store to the parking lot before a bystander tipped off a store clerk.

"This man has a terrible record. He must be characterized as a thief," said Crown counsel Don Laughton, asking for a penitentiary sentence.

Thefts have shown a startling increase in Victoria, Laughton said, and the court should make the sentence substantial to deter others and to protect the public.

He said Nicholson had no respect for the property of others nor any intention of rehabilitating himself. Only by some effort of his own could there be any rehabilitation, and Nicholson had showed no such inclination.

SCOTT'S WORLD:

Blonde and Bemused, Sybil's Confused Over Who Wears the Family Pants And What All the North American Furore Is Over Why and How They Do

By VERNON SCOTT
United Press International

HOLLYWOOD — The national pre-occupation with women — as opposed to men — in the United States is altogether foreign to at least one European actress who has moved to Hollywood to further her career.

Sybil Danning, a native of Wels, Austria, says there's no such thing as women's lib in Wels.

Sybil is blonde, statuesque and bemused by America's concern with equal rights. Half German, half Austrian, Sybil divided her time between Munich and Rome for the five years preceding her move to California a year ago.

She is starring with Alain Delon and Robert Wagner in Airport '79 Concorde and had a top role in Meteor. When not absorbed in film work, the Teutonic beauty studies the manners and morals of her new country and sometimes is astonished by the contrasts with her European past.

"The feminist movement is not an issue in European countries," she said. "Men and women are more confident of their sexual roles and more comfortable with what they are."

Sybil, who has never married, is no innocent abroad.

"I haven't had time to get married," she said. "And I haven't found the right man. I don't have to get married to be taken care of and like most European women I plan to marry only once.

"That's one big difference between American and European women. We don't marry as early over there, so our marriages endure longer.

"It is much more difficult to get a divorce in Europe and also more expensive, so we Europeans give more thought to marriage. We think twice before running off to the altar.

"Women are judged more harshly for their behavior in this country. Living with a man outside of marriage is less of a disgrace in Europe than a divorce.

"In that respect we are more old-fashioned than American women. While we think of ourselves as independent individuals, we don't equate that with being 'liberated' because we really don't want to be.

"In Germany and Italy especially, the man wears the trousers in the family and is the boss of the house. If he comes home and finds his wife hasn't prepared dinner because she's been in the beauty parlor all day, she may not have any hair to worry about the next time.

"American men want to prove themselves to their women materialistically. They worry about their image as males because their women are as success-oriented as they are. Europeans have no doubts about their roles.

"Both German and Italian men dominate their wives. The Italians are more sophisticated in their marriages than Germans, especially when it comes to mistresses or outside affairs. They boast about such things. German men are more conservative and discreet."

According to Sybil, European couples generally are far behind Americans when it comes to two-paycheque families.

GROWN-UP DISNEY is the way producer-director Martin Rosen describes his animated feature Watership Down, an allegorical story about rabbit relationships. According to Rosen, it is a film for adults but one which children will enjoy.

60 MINUTES UNDER FIRE

MINEOLA, N.Y. (AP) — A Port Washington, N.Y., book publisher Monday filed a $25-million suit in state Supreme Court against the CBS television network and CBS correspondent Morley Safer, complaining that they intentionally distorted an interview with her.

Billie Young, president of Ashley Books, contends in the suit that an interview with her on 60 Minutes, the network's news magazine show, on Jan. 7 distorted her remarks.

Ms. Young said that during the interview the Canadian-born Safer asked her whether Ashley was a vanity publishing house. A vanity, or subsidy publishing house, takes money from the author to publish the author's book.

Although she denied it several times, Ms. Young said her denial was cut from the interview that was broadcast.

Ms. Young, who started Ashley publishing eight years ago, said she has handled between 175 and 200 authors during that time and only two per cent have been subsidized.

Ms. Young alleged that many of CBS's subsidiaries might be considered direct competition to Ashley Books, naming the publishing houses of Popular Library, Fawcett, Crest, Holt Rinehart and Winston, Gold Medal Books and others.

Sister Hostage, Cellist Claims

WASHINGON (AP) — Renowned cellist Mstislav Rostropovich, music director of the National Symphony Orchestra here, said Monday the Soviet government is persecuting his sister because of his actions and statements. He likened the rights of Soviet citizens to those of "caged animals."

Now, Rostropovich told a news conference, the Soviet government has forbidden his sister, Veronica, to accompany the Moscow Philharmonic Orchestra, now on tour in Canada and the United States. She has been a violinist with the orchestra for more than 20 years.

"I do not know who should be given the dubious honor of having invented the system of hostages—the Soviet government or terrorists, but this system is very well organized in my former country," he said.

"Because I have not slandered life in the West, because I have found happiness here as a musician and because I have openly spoken about the lack of freedom in Soviet art, they are punishing me. And now they are making my sister suffer under the black mark of a pariah in her own country and depriving her of her lawful right to creative work. . . .

"Can we seriously think that the rights of people in the U.S.S.R. differ from those of caged animals?"

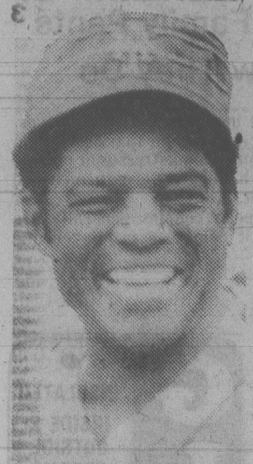
Say Hey, Wondrous Willie's In!



WILLIE MAYS
. . . elected on first ballot

NEW YORK (AP) — Willie Mays, who loved baseball and played it with greatness, was elected to the Hall of Fame today by an overwhelming vote.

Mays, only the ninth player ever to be enshrined in his first year of eligibility — excluding the first year of voting in 1936 — received 409 of a possible 432 votes by 10-year members of the Baseball Writers Association of America participating in the annual balloting.

While Mays became the 88th player chosen for induction into the Hall at Cooperstown, N.Y., two other outstanding outfielders, Enos Slaughter and Duke Snider, again failed to receive enough votes.

Snider, a contemporary of Mays when he played centrefield for Brooklyn Dodgers, was second with 308 votes, 16 short of the required 324. It was his 10th year on the ballot.

It was a bitter disappointment for Slaughter, a major leaguer for 21 years, 13 with St. Louis Cardinals, who finished third with 297 votes, 27 shy of the required number. A nominee must appear on at least 75 per cent of the voters' ballots to gain entrance to the Hall.

This was the 15th year he had fallen short, and he no longer is eligible unless he is elected by the veterans' committee. However, he must wait another five years before he can be considered by the veterans' group.

The late Gil Hodges, another former Dodger, finished fourth with 242, followed by ex-Dodger pitcher Don Drysdale, with 233.

The bubbling, zestful Mays, nicknamed the Say Hey Kid, retired as a player in 1973 after a total of 22 seasons with New York and San Francisco Giants, and New York Mets for whom he now is a coach.

Mays' legendary career brings back memories to many baseball people, particularly Leo Durocher.

Durocher, Mays' first big league manager with New York Giants in 1951 and a father figure to him for many years, said, "Willie could do everything from the day he joined the Giants. He could do all the things you look for in a player better than anybody I ever saw. He never had to be taught a thing."

DiMaggio, like Mays, excelled as a centre fielder with a New York team — the Yankees. Ironically, Mays entered the major leagues the year Dimaggio departed.

"Baseball is my life," Mays once said — and he played like he meant it.

He could hit, run, throw and field with the best in the game.

The Giants called up Mays in May 1951 when he was tearing up the American Association with a .477 batting average. Mays remembers his first meeting with Durocher.

"It was a Friday in Philadelphia and he scared me," recalled Mays.

Mays was hitless in his first 12 major league at-bats.

"I just about quit right then because I couldn't produce the way I thought I should be," he said.

Durocher found him crying in the clubhouse.

"He told me, 'Willie, you're my centre fielder. Just forget about that slump,'" said Mays.

"That was what I needed. My problem was just a confidence thing."

The following night, Mays got his first hit, a home run that soared over the left field roof of the old Polo Grounds. It was hit off the crafty Braves' left-hander, Warren Spahn.

"From that day on, I went and played like a champion," said Mays.

Steelers Prove Best In Best Super Bowl

That was quite a Super Bowl game, wot! The Steelers were full value for their victory and quarterback Terry Bradshaw fully deserving of all the accolades passed his way.

The rival quarterbacks and coaches weren't going to be accused of making this a dull football game. Both teams filled the air with footballs, 30 passes each by Bradshaw and his equally outstanding counterpart, Roger Staubach of the Cowboys, and each with 17 completions.

Bradshaw got a couple of sensational catches from Rocky Bleier and Lynn Swann, a great run by John Stallworth after a pass and a determined drive by Franco Harris and that made all the difference with the Cowboys not really that far behind.

"Hollywood" Henderson wasn't the game hero as it might have been although he did contribute much to a Dallas touchdown when he locked Bradshaw's arms in a bear hug while Mike Hegman stole the ball and went in for a Dallas touchdown. That play had the media scrambling for adjectives at the time, but it wasn't to be Henderson's day after all. Bradshaw recovered from the injury he received on the play, hit Stallworth when he got his hands on the ball again, Stallworth did the rest, and the Steelers were back in business. And that could have been the big Steeler play, in this book, because it did seem that Bradshaw might be hurt and perhaps wouldn't be able to throw the ball. He admitted he was woozy but he didn't act like it.

For Dallas, the killer obviously was the ball that Jackie Smith dropped in the end zone. The Cowboys got three points and, as things finally turned out, that was four points short of a tie game. And Staubach showed a lot of class afterwards when he took the blame for the pass.

But that's football, and there were no hard feelings in this, perhaps the best of all Super Bowls.

So I picked the Cowboys by four. How was I to know Smith was going to drop that pass? But there weren't any Steeler fans around. No Takers . . . heh . . . heh.

And I suppose it had to come. The Shamrocks last week named Leon Hall the club's general manager and they did it while he was away in the East on business. But it was pre-ordained anyway because it is perhaps the only function he hasn't done with the team in an executive way. He helped turn out the first program the club ever had, has been the official scorekeeper nearly the entire life of the team, is the club and league statistician and a member of the executive for several years now. Last year at the nationals, Leon kept the media here well advised of the team's goings-on and, at times in the past, also has assisted the media with any details that otherwise may be lacking. He should fill the bill nicely. The Shamrocks, too, soon will release details of a bursary fund in honor of the late former general manager of the club, Norm Kowalyk, who passed away last year. The interim manager was former goalkeeper Skip Chapman. And one would imagine, after the success the team enjoyed last season, barely missing out in the Canadian final, that the coaching announcement due later this week, will feature the name of Nirmal Dillon . . . again. If it doesn't, that will be the surprise. Then, of course, after the Shamrocks win the Mann Cup at home — that's the idea, at any rate — there will be the World Lacrosse championships at Memorial Arena. And obviously some of the Shamrocks would want to be involved in that event, now wouldn't they? Gee, is that time of the year again? Well almost.

So it's almost a brand new batch of curlers for the Island Mixed — Pat McGuire, Al Frame, Dave Smith and Rob Cummings being the skips charged with getting a Victoria team here for the B.C. final in February. Smith is the only one who has been there before having qualified in 1977. But that's the way it is in curling. Somebody new pops up each year and congratulations to the winners. And there has to be a better way of getting the entries in for the playdowns to avoid the problem that saw the Pat McGuire (nee Pat Marshall) rink almost left out in the cold. The committee acted in the only way it could under the circumstances and McGuire and Co. did the rest, proving they belonged. And thanks to Joe Schmidt and George Faithful for a job well done under trying conditions.

While the B.C. Racing Commission, or the cabinet, whichever, debates the pros and cons of Standardbred and Thoroughbred horse racing dates for Sandown Park, Cloverdale Raceway is making its own news. Blueprints for a new grandstand are being completed and construction of a $2 million, 3,500-seat grandstand is expected to start in May. The new facility will be constructed so that further expansion will be possible when warranted.

NATIONAL COACH TO WATCH ACTION

Vancouver Island Soccer League players may be putting out a little more than usual Wednesday during an exhibition match at Royal Athletic Park.

Game time is 7 p.m.

Barry Clarke, recently named as the Canadian national coach, will be in town to look over Island talent.

Clarke, faced with the task of putting together national teams for the Olympics and Pan-American Games, is also involved in youth and university soccer programs.

From the talent on display Wednesday, Clarke will likely select five or six players to a team he will be taking to San Diego next weekend.

Peter Zachary and Ted Van Waes of the University of Victoria Vikings, Garnet Moen and Steve Forslund of Victoria West and Danny Hood and Mark Robb of Victoria Athletics have already drawn Clarke's eye.

Middleton Gives Bruins Lift

RICK MIDDLETON
. . . reliable performer

By The Canadian Press

With the Boston Bruins team crippled around him, Rick Middleton has become one of the most reliable performers on the Adams Division leaders in the National Hockey League.

"I don't think you're going to see a more exciting hockey player than Ricky Middleton right now," said his coach, Don Cherry, after the forward provided the tying goal and set up the go-ahead score Monday night in a 3-1 victory over Atlanta Flames.

"There's nothing you can do when he moves around you. He must be a defenceman's nightmare," Cherry said.

In the lone other NHL game New York Islanders defeated Chicago Black Hawks 2-1.

Middleton backed up his coach's assessment when he skated out of the corner on a power play and passed across the crease to Jean Ratelle for the go-ahead goal in a 1-1 tie with 53 seconds left in the second period.

Middleton had taken a pass seven minutes earlier from Dwight Foster, sped around defenceman Bob Murdoch, faked goalie Dan Bouchard down and poked the puck into the net to tie the score at 1-1.

Peter McNab hurt his knee and Dennis O'Brien pulled a groin muscle during the game, joining a Bruins' crippled list that includes Brad Park, Dick Redmond and Stan Jonathan.

"And they still come on and beat a club that's really playing," said Cherry. "They won their last three games on the road. There might be better teams than the Bruins, but there's none with a bigger heart."

Bob MacMillan put the Flames in the lead with the lone first-period goal after Guy Chouinard drew Boston goalie Jim Pettie out of the net and passed to MacMillan for the score.

Bob Miller scored the third Bruins goal.

Gary Howatt converted a pass by linemate Bob Nystrom with 8:35 gone in the final period to lift the Islanders past Chicago.

Nystrom, rushing in on Tony Esposito, took the puck away from Chicago's Tim Higgins and passed behind his back to Howatt, who scored his 11th goal of the season.

For the first time in the history of the game the NHL could have 10 players with 100 or more points at the end of the 1978-79 season.

If the top nine pointmen maintain their current paces through the balance of the season, all would finish the campaign with at least 106 points.

Middleton, currently 10th in the scoring race, would finish the season with 97 points. A splurge in one or two games could put Middleton over the 100-point mark as well.

Bryan Trottier of New York Islanders remains the over-all leader with 33 goals and 45 assists for 78 points, five points ahead of Guy Lafleur of the Canadiens.

SPONSOR WITHDRAWS, CANADA CUP IN DOUBT

TORONTO (CP) — General Motors has withdrawn its sponsorship of Canadian teams in both the world championships and Canada Cup and Alan Eagleson, chairman of Hockey Canada's international committee, said the Canada Cup tournament this fall is in limbo.

"There's nothing definite, but it doesn't look good for the Canada Cup," Eagleson said today.

The Toronto lawyer has been in a power struggle with Gordon Renwick of Cambridge, Ont., president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, in recent months over who is responsible for arranging tourneys involving national and professional teams.

Eagleson said the CAHA was asked to agree in writing by Jan. 15 two Hockey Canada stipulations — that Guenther Sabetzki, president of the International Ice Hockey Federation, approve all international exchanges involving National Hockey League and World Hockey Association teams, and that Canada be represented at all future junior world champions by a select team.

"We heard that the CAHA had agreed to Mr. Sabetzki approving the exchange games with the professional exchanges; but we've had nothing in writing," Eagleson said. He said the approval had been reached at an IIHF meeting earlier in the month but Renwick had refused to sign the documents, saying he first had to get CAHA board approval.

The only word Eagleson said he has had on the CAHA board meeting was in the form of a news release.

"They (the CAHA) didn't honor their end of the bargain so we had to let GM off the hook," Eagleson said. "There's no chance they'll come back."

He said the original deadline for settling the issues had been last Oct. 15, "but we kept extending the date."

Eagleson said he didn't think anything the CAHA did was "soluble" so long as Renwick was in a position where he wielded any power with the amateur body.

"He doesn't trust me and I don't trust him," said Eagleson.

Read's Ski Suit Fails In Second Wind Test

ST. GALLEN, Switzerland (CP) — For the second time, Swiss Standards Bureau technicians blew air through Ken Read's yellow ski suit Monday and for the second time the Calgary skier's controversial downhill outfit blew the tests.

The original test of the suits worn by Read and clubmate Dave Murray of Abbotsford in a World Cup downhill at Morzine, France, on Jan. 6 resulted in the disqualification of both Canadians and the loss of 25 World Cup points by Read, who had won the race. Murray had finished 12th.

The victory was awarded to Steve Podborski of Toronto, who had finished second wearing a suit that met the specifications of the International Ski Federation (FIS).

The suits worn by Read and Murray were found to lack the wind resistance required under FIS regulations.

Tuesday's tests, conducted in response to a protest by the Canadian team against the disqualifications, found that the suits permitted the penetration of 20 to 25 litres of air per square metre per second instead of the FIS-required minimum of 50 litres.

"As far as I am concerned, we are finished with our protest," said Andrezj Kozbial, director of the Canadian ski program and one of a grroup of FIS and Canadian officials who witnessed Monday's tests. "The FIS rules are very clear about how much air downhill suits must let in and our suits did not comply."

Meanwhile, at Steinach, Austria, Ingemar Stenmark of Sweden won a World Cup men's giant slalom ski race today in three minutes 00.01 seconds.

Peter Luescher of Switzerland placed second in 3:00.98 and Andreas Wenzel of Liechtenstein was third in 3:01.38.

Lea Soelkner of Austria won the World Cup skiing women's slalom with a combined time for two runs of 1:39.84 at Schruns, Austria.

Claudia Giordani of Italy was second in 1:41.62 followed by Annemarie Moser-Proell of Austria in 1:41.78.

Gymnasts Named To Island Squad

PORT ALBERNI — Fourteen gymnasts have been picked to represent Vancouver Island at the B.C. Winter Games, March 1-4 in Kamloops, following trials here at the weekend.

Andrew Poirier of Victoria and David Limber of Courtenay will compete in the argo boys' division while Delaina Wilson and Susan Ross of Victoria, Sarilyn Timcke of Courtenay and Linda Hentges of Port Alberni will try for the corresponding girls' crown.

Anthony Barker and Mike Haagenson of Victoria, Brian Chiko of Port Alberni and Bruce Melville of Courtenay emerged as the tryo boys' reps while Terri Mack of Victoria, Barb Bernell of Courtenay, Lisa Hawkings of Port Alberni and Debbie Stumpf of Nanaimo complete the girls' team in the same division.

Barlow Bows In Boise

BOISE, Idaho — Wendy Barlow of Victoria lost her first-round match in a $25,000 tennis tournament here Monday, bowing 6-2, 6-2 to Sylvia Hanika of Munich, West Germany.

Karen Susman, a 36-year old former Wimbledon singles and doubles champion, defeated Mary Struthers of LaJolla, Calif., 6-2, 6-1 in anothrer match.

Renee Blount of St. Louis, Mo., pulled the biggest upset of the day, beating eighth-seeded Michelle Tyler of England, 6-2, 6-3.

Long-Term Pacts

ATLANTA (AP) — Leading-hitter Jeff Burroughs and reliever Gene Garber have each agreed to long-term baseball contracts with Atlanta Braves of the National League.

WALLIS SELECTED TO BOWLING HALL

Cy Wallis, in his 70s but still one of Victoria's best bowlers, Saturday became the first Vancouver Island fivepinner to be inducted into British Columbia's Bowling Hall of Fame.

Possessor of a 220-plus average, Cy has compiled an impressive string of achievements since rolling his first game at Vancouver in 1933. He has recorded seven series over 1,000, 52 over 900, 11 single games over 400, 510 over 300 and he held the city high-three record for 16 years until Fred Hickey topped the mark last year.

Cats Geared To Cut Gap

A pulled thigh muscle on winger Randy Irving is the latest physical problem to concern coach Jack Shupe as the Cougars open a busy week by meeting Portland Winter Hawks in a Western Hockey League game tonight at Memorial Arena.

It's the first of four games Cougars must play in the next five days. Three of the games are against Portland, leading the Western Division with a 14-point margin over Victoria.

Irving's injury is described as troublesome but not serious and the Lake Cowichan product, obtained in a trade with New Westminster Bruins two weeks ago, is expected to dress tonight.

"He should be ready to play," trainer Gord Hahn said Monday, "but it could be troublesome enough to keep him from operating at full speed."

Winger Bob Smith, who missed Saturday's 4-4 tie with Seattle Breakers because of jammed shoulder, also is expected back in the lineup but two other regulars — defenceman Scott Lang and winger George Fritz — are to remain on the sidelines.

Lang continues to be troubled by a back problem while Fritz, who had a cast removed from his leg Monday, is undergoing therapy for a knee injury.

Shupe, however, will have an extra body to utilize. Len Dawes, a 16-year-old, six-foot-three defenceman from Nanaimo, has been called up from Victoria's tier two affiliate team.

Dawes, considered one of Victoria's brightest prospects with the B.C. Junior League team, was a late addition to the Coastal Division team for tonight's all-star game in Vernon. But a scheduled school examination forced Dawes to cancel his appearance in Vernon and made him available for the Cougars.

Shupe looks at this week's schedule as a good chance to cut into Portland's lead. Teams meet again in Portland on Wednesday and back in Memorial Arena on Saturday. In addition, Cougars also play in Seattle on Friday.

"Portland has had an exceptional road trip," Shupe noted, "and if we're going to bring them back into our range, this will be the week to do it."

Hawks opened their eight-game road trip by dropping a one-goal decision to Calgary. Since then, they have won four and tied two.

Ivy's Continue Victory March

In the other game, Techline Copy Centre tripped Victoria Athletics, 90-72.

Ivy's, leading the league with 13 successive victories, came on strong in the second half to erase a 37-33 halftime deficit.

Gord Hoshal sparked Ivy's with 17 points while Ian Scott pumped in 13 and Lorne Dakin and Dean Sawyer added 12 each. Darrel Johnston set the pace for Trilec with 22 points, including 20 in the first half.

Tom Hatcher fired 36 points to lead Techline. Bob Vanderford (11) and John Lauvaas (10) also reached double figures. Duff McCaghey (20) and Tom Holmes (17) topped Athletic marksmen.

Sleepy Alex Gains Semis

LONDON (Reuter) — Irishman Alex Higgins charged into the semi-finals of the Masters snooker championship Monday night — after almost sleeping through his match.

When his quarter-final against Eddie Charlton of Australia was scheduled to begin, Higgins was still asleep in his hotel. He was urgently awakened, began the match half an hour late, and went on to win, 5-2.

Ben's Work Pays Off

PHOENIX (AP) — A year and a half of pure frustration ended for Ben Crenshaw.

"It's been tough," he said, "watching everybody else in the world win. I got close a lot of times and it hurt, really hurt, to miss in those tournaments. Well, I worked awfully hard on my game. I've really worked at it. And, doggone it, I deserved to win this week."

The victory, his first since May 1977, came by a single shot in the twice-delayed, then abbreviated, 54-hole Phoenix Open.

And it came in typical Crenshaw fashion — out of the woods.

He'd given himself a four-shot lead with a spectacular, 10-under-par 61 in Sunday's second round. No one caught him in the third and final round Monday, but Jay Haas, playing in front of Ben, dropped a 12-foot birdie putt on the last hole to cut the margin to one.

Then it was up to Ben. He needed only a par five on the water-guarded finishing hole at the Phoenix Country Club to win it. And he almost let it get away.

He hooked his tee shot into the trees, a position with which he has become familiar over the years. His second shot was still behind the tree line, but he did have a shot to the green. Haas was standing behind the putting surface watching.

"He hit about the only shot he had out of the trees," Haas said. "He kept it low. When it rolled on the green, well, I didn't think much of my chances. Ben two-putted from a long distance, maybe 30-40 feet, to win it with a final round of par 71 and a 199 total, 14 shots under par."

He claimed $33,750 from the total purse of $187,500, which had been trimmed down from $250,000 when two days of rain delayed the start of the tournament and forced officials to cut the event to 54 holes.

Haas closed with a 68 and was second at 200. Tom Kite, Crenshaw's team-mate at the University of Texas, fired a blazing, eight-under-par 63 in the sunny weather and moved to third at 202.

The group at 203 included Lon Hinkle, Andy Bean, former U.S. Open champ Jerry Pate and Pat McGowan. Pate and Bean had 71s, Hinkle 68 and McGowan a 66 that included a back nine of 29.

John Mahaffey matched par 71 and was tied at 208 with his World Cup teammate, U.S. Open champ Andy North, who had a final-round 72.

Dave Barr of Kelowna, B.C., shot 70 for a 209 total and earned $902.

Crenshaw also won his way into the Tournament of Champions and the Masters.

Some Excellent Views From the Great Ones

Victoria's Dale Shaw is off to a good start in her preparations for this year's Ladies' Professional Golf Association tour.

Dale fired rounds of 78 and 71 last week to earn $350 for a third-place tie in a satellite tournament at the Costa del Sol course near Miami. The $50 was for the 71, which was the low score in the second round.

My admiration for Arnold Palmer and Nancy Lopez increases. Not only are they great golfers, but they think nicely.

Crossing paths in Florida last week, both Lopez and Palmer agreed that youngsters should not rush out on the professional tours before they are mature enough to handle the life.

"When I got off to college, I had a chance to grow up and make my own decisions," Lopez said. "After two years, I thought I was ready for the tour. I felt I could cope with whatever I had to face with out there."

She started on the LPGA tour last year at the age of 21 and ended up as leading money-winner and the biggest attraction in women's golf.

But, she said, despite her success it was tough.

"There are a lot of lonely hours where you are by yourself," Lopez said. "If you aren't mature enough to cope with that, you could really fall apart and lose a lot of confidence."

She feels it may be more difficult this year because people will expect her to do as well again, "but because I am married, I feel a lot happier and I don't feel quite as alone as I did last year."

Palmer, who joined the men's tour at 25 after finishing college, said: "I frankly believe that both girls and boys are starting to play professionally too soon. I think that, particularly on the men's tour, the guys need a little more maturity before they attempt to tour."

He said college golf is one of the finest ways to attain maturity.

It matters not to the masses, I suppose, but I'm surprised no one objected to the interuption in the schedule of this year's CFAX Vancouver Island Open. Traditionally, the Island Open has been the first major competition of the season and always has been played on successive weekends.

This year, April 15 — which should have been the first round — was set aside to accomodate Uplands' annual Easter Invitational. Consequently, match play in the Island Open starts April 22.

It's a very minor matter, but the feeling here is that the interuption, by a club-sponsored event, detracts from the supposition that the Island Open is the premier golf tournament on the Island.

Sparkes, Giles In PCCA Final; Gowsell Out

Defending B.C. champion Bernie Sparkes and Brent Giles, both of Vancouver, have qualified for the men's Pacific Coast Curling Association championships at Duncan, Feb. 2-4.

But if either gets as far as the Canadian this year, at least they won't have to worry about former World junior champion Paul Gowsell of Calgary.

Sparkes and Giles earned their berths in the Zone 3 playdowns at the North Shore Winter Club on the weekend while Gowsell was being eliminated in the Southern Alberta Consols playoff at Calgary.

Sparkes defeated Giles 6-4 the "A" final of the Zone 3 event and Giles came back to defeat Dr. Ken Neuman of Vancouver Club, 5-2, in "B" final.

Sparkes and Neuman were PCCA qualifiers from that zone last year while Brock Giles, with Brent playing third, earned a PCCA berth out of the Totem event.

The Zone two playoffs will take place at Abbotsford this week beginning Thursday. Two rinks will qualify.

Glen Pierce of Vancouver already has qualified for the PCCA final by virtue of winning the 1978 Totem.

A playoff for the second Totem berth will be held next week between qualifying defeated "A" semi-finalists and Totem event winners and will include Bart Longmore and Barry Harvey of Playland Club.

The two Island representative rinks will be decided in an eight-rink playoff at Lake Cowichan, Friday through Sunday.

Playing with Sparkes are his mates of last year — Ron Thompson, Al Cook and Keiven Bauer. With Giles are third Greg Monkman, second Al Roemer and lead Brad Giles.

Gowsell came a cropper in C event of the 16-team triple knockout playoff losing to Calgary's Gary Marks, 7-6. Marks scored two on the final end for the win.

Earlier, Wes Aman of Medicine Hat joined his former skip and Canadian champion Ed Lukowich in the field for the Alberta final as his rink downed Doug Baird of Calgary 6-5 to win the B section final.

Aman, who played lead for Lukowich in three previous Southern Alberta playoffs, advanced to the B final with a 7-6 extra-end win over Gowsell in the semi-final. Aman's teammates are Lloyd Heller at third, Wayne Heller at second and Shane Reesor at lead.

Lukowich, from Medicine Hat, clinched his berth by edging Baird 5-3 in the A final.

It was the fourth straight win for the Lukowich rink, which includes Mike Chernoff, who throws third stones but calls the shots in the house, second Dale Johnston and lead Ron Schindle.

The Roger Hovland rink of Red Deer won the third and last southern Alberta berth Monday by defeating Doug Baird of Calgary 8-3 in the C-section final.

The southern rinks will meet three rinks from the Northern Alberta district and two from the Peace River Curling Association in the eight-rink provincial championship, Feb. 8-11.

Over 300 Required To Handle 'Invasion'

By ERNIE FEDORUK
Times Staff

What does it take to run a hockey tournament with 68 teams?

The answer is: Frank Hegyi, his South Vancouver Island Minor Hockey Association committee of over 300, seven rinks and a great deal of co-operation between the sports group and the business community.

The teams will start arriving later this week and the work for the much of the committee will begin when the estimated 1,400 players settle in and start play in the third annual Western Canada Oldertimers' tournament.

The three-day affair starts Friday with preliminary action scheduled at all seven ice rinks in Greater Victoria — Racquet Club, Panorama Leisure Centre (Sidney), Memorial, Pearkes, Esquimalt, Oak Bay and Juan de Fuca arenas.

The limit entry includes teams from all four Western Canada provinces as well as squads from Spokane and Anchorage.

Hegyi, tournament chairman and president of the SVIMHA, has been the guiding force behind the whopping committee that has stamped Victoria as "the place to visit" in the eyes of oldtime hockey players.

When the tournament was held here last year, the committee numbered about 250. It was well over 300 Monday, and still growing.

Hegyi is pleased with the response of the business community but co-operation is only natural because of the economic boon hockey has created in mid-winter. For example, Hegyi's accomodation committee has booked 2,030 rooms in Greater Victoria motels and hotels, "and that's not counting hundreds from Up-Island and the lower mainland who have made their own arrangements."

A complete list of teams, most scheduled to arrive Thursday, and other tournament details will be published Wednesday.

Arsenal Ends Soccer Saga

LONDON (Reuter) — Arsenal, members of the English League First Division, finally ended its long-running Football Association Cup third-round saga Monday by defeating Sheffield Wednesday 2-0 in the fourth replay at Leicester.

First-half goals by Steve Gatting after five minutes and Frank Stapleton after 32 minutes were all Arsenal needed to end Third Division Sheffield Wednesday's hopes of springing a major upset.

The teams tied 1-1 in their first meeting and 1-1 in their second meeting after 30 minutes of extra time. They split four goals, including extra time, in the second replay and six more, also in extra time, in their fourth encounter last Wednesday.

Healing Substance: Shrinks Piles
Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids and repair damaged tissue.
A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissue.
In case after case, while gently relieving pain, actual reduction (shrinkage) took place.
Most important of all — results were so thorough that this improvement was maintained over a period of many months.
All this was accomplished with a healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue.
Now Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H. Ask for it at all drug stores. Satisfaction or your money refunded.

Veteran Guides Valleau Victory

An 83-year old curler from Squamish showed the younger set the family Valleau wasn't to be trifled with in the annual men's bonspiel at Glen Meadows on the weekend.

Evert Valleau skipped a rink of Valleaus — Bob, Lindsay and Laurence — to the "A" event championship with an extra-end victory over Len Bland of Glen Meadows.

Bob Glover of Glen Meadows captured "B" event and Stu Anderson of Glen Meadows "C" event.

Prizewinners:

"A" EVENT
1. Evert Valleau, Bob Valleau, Lindsay Valleau, Laurence Valleau (Squ).
2. Len Bland, Ron Gardner, Vern Gordon, Ken Morrison (GM).
3. Jack Sumpton (P); 4. Fred Zacek (P).

Ottawa to Japan For $ Borrowing

OTTAWA (CP) — The government is turning to foreign markets again for money to help bolster the troubled Canadian dollar, this time to Japan.

The finance department confirmed recent speculation Monday with a brief announcement that negotiations are underway for a public offering of Canadian government bonds and loans in Japan.

It will be the fifth time the government has borrowed foreign currency in the last year, money subsequently used by the Bank of Canada to buy up unwanted Canadian dollars in an attempt to ease the dollar's steady downward slide.

A finance department spokesman said details such as the size and interest rate on the borrowing likely would not be revealed for a week to 10 days.

It has been through the purchase of unwanted Canadian dollars and lending rate increases that the Bank of Canada has attempted to add some buoyancy to the floating Canadian dollar.

The central bank has been determined to keep Canadian interest rates above those in the U.S.—which also have risen rapidly in the last year—to ensure foreign investors continue to put money into Canada.

If foreign currency is not attracted into the country—where it is converted to Canadian dollars—the value of the dollar is likely to drop further.

Higher interest rates, however, tend to discourage business investment and consumer spending and slow down growth of the economy and jobs.

With the 78-year-old Shiite Moslem patriarch scheduled to return from exile Friday, Gen. Abbas Gharbaghi in an unprecedented broadcast Monday night said the military would not heed the religious leaders who are seeking Bakhtiar's overthrow and would defend the "legal and constitutional" government.

"The unity, security and well-being of the people are in danger," said Gharbaghi. "The servants of the imperial armed forces, with decisive will and patriotism, will overcome their sentiments and will endeavor more than before to support the legal government."

Khomeini, who has led the uprising against the shah and his regime from France, has appealed to the armed forces to support his crusade to convert Iran to an Islamic republic with a government named by him.

In a related development, two RAF Hercules planes will fly to Ahwaz, northeast of the Iranian oil city of Abadan, on Wednesday to evacuate about 100 Americans, 80 Britons and a small number of Dutch, Australian and New Zealand nationals, it was announced today in London.

A British foreign office spokesman told reporters the local Iranian commander had requested the evacuation.

Oh, Oh, We've Had It! Crash Survivor Testifies

VANCOUVER (CP) — A sudden noise from the left engine of an AirWest Airlines float plane caused several passengers to cry out in fear, an inquest into the Sept. 2 crash that killed 11 was told Monday.

The testimony came through an interpreter from Mataska Fukuta, 32, a Japan Air Lines pilot who was one of the two survivors of the plane's plunge into Coal Harbor.

Fukuta, who suffered a fractured arm and ankle in the crash, limped to the witness stand to testify that there was little warning of danger aboard the Twin Otter until the sudden, brief noise.

The plane wobbled briefly and banked to the left, Fukuta said. He then saw the pilot advance the throttle and the aircraft's nose turned down and the plane tilted more to the left.

The survivor said the aircraft was 800 feet above Stanley Park on its landing approach when the sudden movements occurred and when it went into its steep bank he said to himself: "Oh, oh, we've had it."

The hearing was crowded with lawyers representing the pilot, cabin attendant and the families of nine Japanese tourists who died in the crash. Other lawyers represented the survivors, AirWest, a local tourist company and the firm that manufactures the equipment used on propellers of the Twin Otter.

Fukuta, of Tokyo, lost his mother in the crash. Both were members of the tourist party. The other survivor was Yuki Ishi of Vancouver.

The crash occurred on a regularly-scheduled flight to Vancouver from Victoria. Witnesses said the plane came in low over Stanley Park, veered sharply to the left and crashed into a narrow channel at Royal Vancouver Yacht Club.

Wash. Refinery Doubles Use Of Alaska Oil

TACOMA (AP) — A small independent refinery has announced plans to double its production using Alaskan crude oil, a move that will increase tanker and barge traffic on Puget Sound.

Only one other Washington refinery, the much larger Arco plant at Cherry Point, can handle the high-sulfur Alaskan crude.

Jim Lopeman, vice president of Sound Refining Inc., said Monday that his firm now produces about 10,000 barrels of petroleum products a day. Proposed modifications to allow refining of all-Alaska crude will increase production to about 20,000 barrels a day.

Lopeman declined to disclose what the modifications announced Monday will cost.

Lopeman said the refinery now gets all its crude oil by tanker, 75 per cent from California and 25 per cent from Alaska. He said the firm can't use more Alaskan crude now because of equipment limitations.

Financing for the project has yet to be arranged, but Sound Refining has applied for permits from various city, county and state agencies.

Lopeman said the modifications should take about a year once financing and permits are obtained.

WEST BERLIN (AFP) — The number of visits to East Berlin and East Germany by West Berliners last year totalled 3.26 million, the West Berlin senate, the city's executive body, said Monday.

MAGGIE BACK IN HOSPITAL

OTTAWA (CP) — Margaret Trudeau, estranged wife of the prime minister, is in good condition in Ottawa General Hospital today after being admitted Saturday with secondary hemorrhaging.

Mrs. Trudeau, 30, had her tonsils removed Jan. 8, a hospital spokesman said, but was experiencing bleeding at the site of the operation.

She underwent surgery the same day she was admitted to stop the bleeding and would remain in hospital for a few days.

GLAZIERS OFF

At the same time business agents for the Glaziers Union Local 1527, in Burnaby, were gathered at the Labor Relations Board to discuss the issue.

A union spokesman said the glassworkers are upset because other tradesmen are encroaching upon their work areas.

Glaziers in Victoria were to hold a general meeting this afternoon.

Frustration, Fire and Deaths Didn't Stop Them

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

As a Canadian literary event it's pretty insignificant.

There will be no promotional lunches, no lionizing of authors, no autographing sessions at Eaton's.

But the publication this week of Camas Chronicles, a limited-edition hardcover book on the history of James Bay, means a lot to nine senior citizens.

At an age when most retired people are content to write diary entries or the occasional letter, they undertook the daunting task of research, interviewing and writing to tell the story of the oldest residential area on B.C.'s coast.

The collaborators — Ruth Judson, Edward Belt, Max and Frances Hopper, Alberta Harris, James McCook, John and Phyllis Eltringham, Louise Iverson — are members of the Camas Historical Group, which is affiliated with the James Bay New Horizons Society.

Their project has taken five years to complete, with plenty of setbacks and frustrations along the way, said the group's leader, Mrs. Iverson.

The biggest disappointment of all occurred three years ago when a fire at the society's former drop-in centre on Superior Street destroyed much of the accumulated material.

The continuity of the team effort was also interrupted as some of the original members died or moved elsewhere, and others replaced them.

They spent hours poring over files in the Provincial Archives and the Victoria Press library. They went out into the community armed with tape recorders and notebooks to interview as many long-time residents as possible (some of whom have since died).

"It was urgent we get these stories in before it was too late," said Mrs. Iverson, a retired schoolteacher who was born in a home on James Bay's Niagara Street.

She stressed that the authors make no claim to literary excellence or a definitive historical approach.

"That's why we have called it Camas Chronicles — they're word-of-mouth stories with a homey flavor."

Mrs. Iverson says the book covers such aspects as James Bay's cultural heritage, schools and churches, as well as accounts of the area's pioneer families who transformed the once-forested peninsula into a proud community of tree-lined streets.

The book produced by Evergreen Press Ltd. contains nearly 200 pages and several illustrations.

Two thousand copies have been printed, and can be purchased only from the James Bay New Horizons Society, 234 Menzies. The price is $10.

Pickup Challenges 'Disgusting' Order

By LORRAINE LOCHERTY
Times Staff

Greater Victoria school board chairman Carol Pickup said today she will challenge the legality of what she called a "disgusting" order by Education Minister Pat McGeer to change her Camosun College council appointments.

Pickup questions the legality of a decision by McGeer that the school board must appoint four trustees to the college council.

She said she hopes to have a legal opinion before Wednesday's board meeting.

Trustees will decide then on a course of action, she said.

The minister's decision, received by Pickup in a letter Monday afternoon, means two hotly-contested appointments of non-trustees approved by the board last week, are not valid.

Pickup said McGeer's order is a blatant and disgusting attempt to control an autonomous body.

The order is fulfilment of a threat by deputy minister Walter Hardwick that the ministry would take action if the new appointments were approved, she charged.

Pickup last week changed four college appointments made in December by former chairman Susan Brice, saying they should have been made by the new board in January.

Brice and trustees Dr. Mark Fisher and Peter Yorke were removed as appointees and Pickup's nomination of trustees Mary Breer and Dr. Martin Levin, non-trustee Beryl Young and former trustee Dr. Hal Knight approved.

McGeer said in his letter he is using a new section of the Colleges and Provincial Institutes Act to demand four trustees be appointed to the council.

Existing structure is five trustees and five government appointees, Pickup said.

The order is a distortion of the colleges act and ensures government control of the council, she said.

"I question the legality of the situation. I question whether the minister's request is in concert with the act."

A Nov. 23 cabinet order requesting college appointments be made before the new year ended the transition period, she said.

Late Word from Dartmouth . . .

Irene MacDonald's missing Christmas present has been found.

About two weeks ago Mrs. MacDonald of 103-837 Ellery got word from the post office they had a torn, shredded piece of paper for her from a friend in Dartmouth, N.S.

A phone call to her friend revealed the paper had wrapped a parcel containing gifts for Mrs. MacDonald and her family, including a grandfather clock for the mantle.

The piece of paper had been sent all the way across Canada but there was no sign of the gifts.

However, Mrs. MacDonald said Monday the package turned up intact at the Holiday Inn in Dartmouth where her friend works.

It appears the goodies were put in a box with the Holiday Inn crest on it and so the post office sent it along hoping somebody would recognize it.

Mrs. MacDonald is now keeping her fingers crossed as her friend was supposed to have mailed the package Monday for the second time.

Crunch Time for Blocks?

The owners of six city apartment blocks should be issued with fire marshal orders to upgrade the safety standards of their buildings, Ald. Larry Ryan said Monday.

Ryan, chairman of the fire safety committee, said such a recommendation will be given to city council at Thursday's meeting.

He said some time ago the six buildings in question were posted with fire department placards warning that the structures did not meet current fire safety standards.

"They have been placarded but the building owners have taken no action," said Ryan. "So I'll recommend that a fire marshal's order be issued against them."

He said the city doesn't want to be unreasonably tough with the apartment block owners, and is prepared to give them more time to upgrade their premises.

"If they take some action we will work with them — but we won't tolerate feet dragging," said Ryan.

Last September seven apartment blocks were posted as being deficient in some safety areas.

Since that time the owner of Mt. Edward Apartments, 1002 Vancouver, has applied for a zoning change and consequently his building was dropped from the list.

The six remaining posted buildings are: Leland Apartments, 2512 Douglas; Newfield Apartments, 723 Field; Fisgard Apartments, 820 Fisgard; Parkside Apartments, 928 Bay; Chinese tenements, 532 Fisgard, and the Linden Apartments at 1190 May.

West Coast Purchased

West Coast Air Services Ltd. has been taken over by Cromarty Holdings Ltd.

The takeover, which goes into effect Feb. 1, is subject to approval by the air transport committee of the Canadian Transport Commission.

West Coast Air has a fleet of 28 aircraft and has a regular Vancouver-Victoria flight using Twin Otters.

Big Em Blocks, Preem Gets Points

Like Franco Harris of the Pittsburgh Steelers Sunday, Premier Bill Bennett at last week's B.C. Truck Loggers Convention found his forward progress impeded by an immovable mass of mankind. So, also like Harris, he called on blockers to help.

The situation looked hopeless until big Emery Barnes, the NDP MLA from Vancouver Centre, dropped over to greet Bennett, who explained his problem.

"No problem. Follow me," said the former B.C. Lions lineman as he plowed through the throng with Bennett and entourage close on his heels.

BARNES
. . . 'follow me'

Bennett, ever the politician, knows better than to let an opportunity like that pass.

After reaching the safety of the head table, Bennett turned to Big Em and stiffed him with: "Thanks Em, now you know what it's like to block for a winning team."

If you don't remember, the B.C. Lions of Em's day were about as successful as the 1975 NDP team.

So you think it's tough to pay around a buck a gallon for gas?

Be happy you're down here and not up in Prince George.

The BCAA says as of last November (what's the betting the price hasn't already gone up some since) the folk in PG were coughing up a cool $1.10 for premium, $1.09.5 for regular and $1.07.2 for unleaded.

Top price for diesel was 98.9 in Nelson and lowest average for gas anywhere in B.C. was New Westminster with regular pumping for 91.4 and premium for 95.9.

No sooner had Blencoe announced that the Doobie Brothers band was booked into Memorial Arena this spring than the rock group called up to cancel.

"It's just terrible," said Blencoe. "But it happens a lot with rock groups; you never know if they're really going to show until the last hour."

Blencoe said staff from the arena are immediately starting work to try and find a replacement band — hopefully of equal stature.

"We'll be looking big and fast," said Blencoe.

Brought to you live and in living color by the taxpayers of Canada, the CBC presents . . . its new Victoria headquarters on Blanshard Street.

Broadcasting from the glass and concrete structure hasn't started yet — construction isn't even finished — but the new building is already attracting attention.

The reason is its striking (some might say incredibly garish) color scheme. Window frames on the glassed-in south side are painted a deep red and contrasting bright orange, and whole sections of wall elsewhere are the same scarlet shade. Big blocks of lemon yellow and undisguised silvery heating and cooling ducts snake along the ceilings.

If you liked the restoration paint job on St. Andrew's Roman Catholic Cathedral, or the Great Pumpkin bank building at Fort and Government, you'll love the new CBC building.

Shades of the days when people pored over the old almanac were revived for Town Talk this week with the arrival of the Chase Almanac and Fact Book for 1979.

He draws especial attention to a section of 1860 backyard beverages that includes a recipe for Philadelphia beer that has brown sugar, ginger root and hops as its main ingredients.

The almanac's almost pocket size but still quite fascinating and has almost a 19th century atmosphere with its vaguely Lydia Pinkham-ish style remedies for what ails you.

Banned in Edmonton

The Year of the Maestros as publicized by the Victoria Symphony Society is in peril of going down in audience memory as the year of the goofs.

The latest came Sunday when the crowd at the afternoon concert at the University Centre found there were no programs.

The Edmonton airport?

Right. Symphony officials say it's cheaper to have the programs printed in Edmonton and air-freighted to Victoria than to get them printed in this city.

Also on the judges panel will be Helen Beirnes, Gloria Stewart, Alex Robertson and Ron Andrews.

Contestants must be 14-18 in full-time attendance at high school, college or university. Registration can be made at Woodward's women's wear department and must be accompanied by a recent picture.

The store will present a full wardrobe to Miss Teen Victoria for 1979. She'll also receive jewelry from Sarah Coventry, along with many other gifts.

This year's winner will fly to Toronto to compete in the nationally televised Teen Canada Pageant.

Bus patrons who normally wait at Richmond and Oak Bay had reason for a double-take recently when they saw a new bus shelter go up, then come down again only to be moved back a foot or so.

It may have seemed like a lot of fuss, says city engineer John Sansom, but it was necessary to reach a compromise. Sansom says there's a narrow pedestrian right-of-way in that section and when the shelter was put up a lot of people started complaining they didn't have enough room to walk by.

The city managed to find a way around the problem, however, by getting an easement on nearby private land so the shelter could be set back from the sidewalk.

"It cost us a little bit of money to do it (less than $100)," said Sansom. "But it was worth it, to work out a compromise between those who use the bus and those who walk."

The city is putting up about ten of the new shelters a year. They keep the rain and cold wind out and cost about $2,000 each.

Year of Decision Looms On Restoration of Castle

You can be sure when members of the Craigdarroch Castle Society gather on Saturday for their annual meeting and tea, one question uppermost in their minds will be — is this the year of decision?

That question has surfaced at every annual meeting in the past decade. This year, however, it takes on added importance.

It's a well-known fact that, because of continuing growth, the Conservatory is looking for other accomodation.

If it finds that accommodation and vacates Craigdarroch, this could indeed be a year of decision for the Castle Society.

"What happens will be up to City Hall, owners of the castle," society president James Nesbitt says.

What he hopes is that the society will be allowed to complete restoration as it has dreamed of doing for years.

Then to see it opened to the public as a museum featuring a gracious way of life in early Victoria at a time when Mrs. Robert Dunsmuir, widow of Vancouver Island's coal baron, lived there.

In the 20 years since its founding the Castle Society has worked on this project under restricted, and many times frustrating, conditions.

At first the Greater Victoria School Board occupied the Castle. When it moved to its present location, the school of music moved in.

Despite these restrictions a tremendous amount of work has been accomplished.

A small grant in 1962 from the Victoria centennial committee allowed the Castle Society to embark on its first project — to floodlight the outside of the building.

Since then magnificent bevelled glass windows have been restored, panelling has been rescued from dry rot, fireplaces returned to their former elegance and parquet floors, panelled walled and ceilings uncovered.

Furnishings and bric-a-brac, paintings, china and silver have been accepted from donors or discovered in second-hand stores and placed in rooms available to the Castle Society and that are open for public viewing.

The artist, Warren Becker of Sooke, has now been commissioned to restore two round plastic windows in the tower which were put in as "a temporary measure" seven years ago.

"We try to act as watchdogs," Nesbitt says, "keep one jump ahead of any massive deterioration and correct or restore wherever it is possible."

That box, by the way, yeilded just over $50,000 in 1978.

The city maintains the lawn and flower beds immediately around the Castle.

"If only it would do something about the rest of the grounds, we'd be happy," Nesbitt says.

"Nothing elaborate is needed, only the terrace weeded, watered and kept neat and tidy and the grass kept cut."

Then he adds: "Visitors can never understand the city's abandonment of that terrace which quite simply could be made an added attraction to the Castle — and neither can we understand it."

Next to the Legislative Buildings he believes Craigdarroch Castle is the biggest "free" attraction in Greater Victoria.

There is no entrance fee.

Tourists flock there in the summer months. They sign their names and where they come from in a visitors' book, and they add comments as to what they think of the place.

"Most of them rave and rave," Nesbitt says, "saying it's beautiful, fantastic, thrilling, gorgeous, unique, and that it should most definitely be preserved and opened as a full-time museum."

Nesbitt warns, however, that even if the music school does find new quarters and the city accepts the idea of turning Craigdarroch into a museum, the work of full restoration should be spread over several years.

He thinks it would be wrong to close Craigdarroch entirely and to try and do all restoration work at once.

"People like to see what they are helping to accomplish," he says, "and if restoration was done slowly they could be kept in the picture while they see rooms already restored and open for viewing."

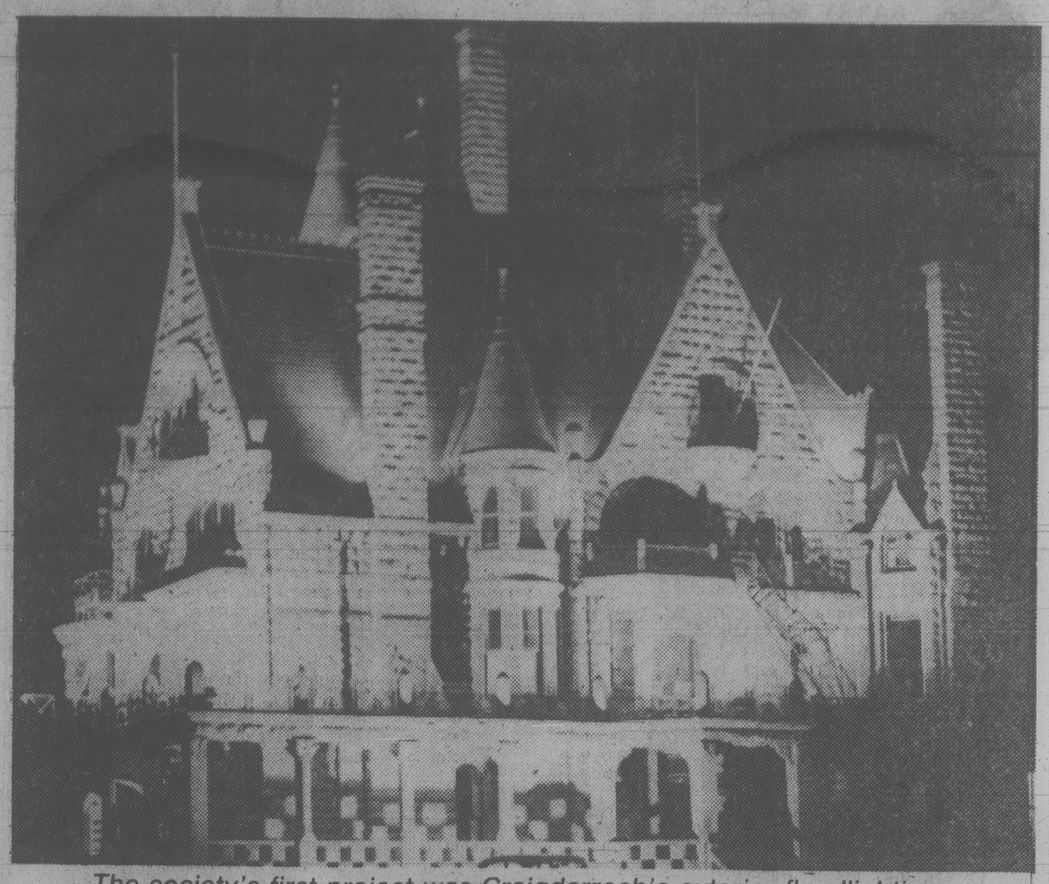
"It could start with the billiard room on the third floor, then perhaps turn to restoring the kitchens ... and so on ... as visitors were still welcomed and given conducted tours."

While the main function of Craigdarroch, as a museum, would be educational and as a place to create interest in the early history of this area, Nesbitt sees endless possibilities — after full-restoration — for the off-tourist months.

"If properly managed it could be opened for wedding receptions, special meetings, private luncheons and other special gatherings."

Eventually he sees all this coming true, sooner than one might think, he says, if the school of music finds larger quarters by the end of this year and City Hall then comes to a decision.



The society's first project was Craigdarroch's exterior floodlighting

dear abby

DEAR ABBY: My wife, Bess, is a registered nurse. She worked until our children came along, but quit to be a fulltime mother. The kids are all out of school, and Bess went back to part-time nursing because she enjoys it. I have a good income and it's not necessary for her to work at all.

My mother recently suffered a serious stroke. She divorced my father when I was four and devoted her life to raising me. She made many sacrifices to send me to the best schools, etc. Mother is in the hospital now, but when she is well enough, I want her to make her home with us. No way will I put her in a nursing home.

I told Bess this and she said, "Fine, but you had better plan on getting someone in to take care of her because I am going back to work full-time."

I was shocked. My wife, a registered nurse, would rather care for strangers than stay at home and nurse my mother. She knows I never could repay my mother for all she's done for me. What do you make of this?

MIXED EMOTIONS

DEAR MIXED: Your wife obviously does not share your deep feeling of obligation insofar as your mother is concerned. Hire a nurse to take care of your mother and take good care of yourself.

DEAR ABBY: I was divorced at 57, after 30 years. I lost my husband to his secretary, who was 25.

I soon found out that men my age prefer women half my age. I didn't want to settle for a sick old man.

I joined the weird world of wandering widows and made the best of it.

I got a job and decided to be good to myself, instead of waiting on a man who'd never appreciate it.

I still weigh 130, have beautiful clothes, do what I want to do, eat when I'm hungry, sleep when I'm tired and have had some exotic vacations!

I have never been happier. And as for my exhusband — who needs him? H.

DEAR H.: That 25-year-old girl he married.

DEAR ABBY: Whenever I've seen a letter in your column about a family feud, I've wanted to write and tell you about my own experience, but never got around to it. Today I'm getting it off my chest with the hope that some feuding families will patch up their foolish quarrels.

When I was in my teens, my parents and an aunt and uncle got into an argument about some petty thing that got so blown out of proportion they quit speaking to each other. My cousins and I still associated with each other, but we didn't go into each other's houses because of our feuding parents.

Things went on that way until one morning our phone rang at 7. It was my aunt calling to tell us that her son had been killed in Vietnam. My folks went over there immediately and, of course, the feud was forgotten.

JULIE

DEAR ABBY: My beloved husband, Jim, was electrocuted last summer at work. He had been in the Navy, but because of alcoholism was given an undesirable discharge. Twenty years later, that discharge was changed to "honorable" because of his active participation in Alcoholics Anonymous. (That's how we met.)

My problem? Jim was given a veteran's funeral and I was presented with a three-cornered flag which I keep in my closet in a plastic bag.

Can I fly the flag? — BARBARA R.

DEAR BARBARA: There is absolutely no reason why you can't fly that flag as long as it is flown in accordance with the regulations.

Youth Clinic

Young readers' questions on human relations and sex are answered by a panel of experts: Marion Powell, medical doctor; Graham Cotter, clergyman; and Bruce Vichert, social worker. Send questions to Youth Clinic, The Victoria Times, 2621 Douglas St., Victoria, B.C., V8W 2N4.

Dear Mr. Vichert: I am almost 15 and my parents are divorced. Both are remarried and seemed to be happy. I live with my mother and I accepted a new father who I love. I have got a new sister and brother and we are all a happy family.

My step-sisters and step-brothers visit their real mother every two weekends and always look forward to go.

My younger sister and I visit my father every two weeks also. But lately I don't want to go because my stepmother and I do not get along at all. Lately she has been making me mad.

She calls me names and embarrasses me terribly. I've tried talking to my father about this but he says I'm at the age where I want to cause trouble. That's not true and now he and I are fighting.

My boyfriend suggests I talk to my mom about it. She had told me I would never be forced to go, but I am being forced. She says I shouldn't hurt my stepfather.

Answer: I am sure that the problem you describe is common to a lot of young people. There are a lot of married people that are living apart from each other either through separation or divorce and visiting can get complicated.

There are so many feelings involved, not only yours, but those of your parents and the people that they have married. I can understand that at times visiting may not be appropriate because of the feelings involved and a brief time of not visiting could be a good idea.

I can imagine that it is important for your father to see you, and for your mother to live up to her responsibility to let you go on the visit, but if it continues to be a bad experience for everyone it would seem wise to cancel visits for awhile.

You might also think about putting some extra effort into your visits with your father.

If the two of you could get along it would make the visits more enjoyable and I am sure would please your father.

I can understand that it may be difficult for you to try and get along with so many parents.

But there are benefits in belonging to two families, and I hope you discover these benefits.

Dear Dr. Powell: I am a 15-year-old girl, and I am sexually active with my boyfriend. For the past couple of months I have been getting a whitish yellow discharge in my underwear, and on one occasion this discharge was a brownish color.

My last period had an amount equal to what I usually have on one day. Could you please tell me what it is? The reason I am having it? And why? Also if it could be caused from being sexually active with my boyfriend.

Answer: It is quite normal for women to have a discharge between periods. However I assume that this is different and is worrying you. Since I do not know how long you have been having intercourse and whether you are using any contraceptive I cannot give you a specific answer.

A very scanty period as you have had may be caused by illness or some emotional upset. If it only happens once and your period is normal do not worry about it. But if it happens again you should see your doctor and find out what is causing this change in your periods.

It is unlikely that it is due to being sexually active. Let me remind you that if you are sexually active you should be using some good method of birth control.

So I recommend you see a doctor who can tell exactly what is going on in your body which is causing these changes with your menstrual period and the vaginal discharge. Your own doctor can help you or you could go to the adolescent clinic at the Hospital for Sick Children.

Early Tip-Off on Cancer?

By L. L. Coleman, MD

A new early-detection technique for cancer is being tried in a Boston hospital. It has been found that certain malignant (cancerous) cells slough off an enzyme which can be detected in the blood months before symptoms develop. This was especially noted in cancers of the stomach, the colon and the rectum.

Dr. Daniel K. Podolsky and his colleagues, working at the Massachusetts General Hospital, have been actively engaged in this study. The preliminary investigation is encouraging. When it is thoroughly checked out with experimental animals, the safe technique will be tried on humans.

In their report the researchers say, "We have complete confidence in this test, but there is a long way to go before it will be simplified enough for use in community hospitals. We will feel more comfortable when the test has been duplicated in other laboratories in the studies that are under way in other institutions."

In such visionary scientific investigation, generously supported by government funds, lies the eventual control of the devastation of cancer. Expert scientific teams take years to develop. They must never be separated from their endeavors by a limitation of funds.

The body has its own complex method of controlling severe bouts of pain. Research is actively ongoing to reinforce nature's own analgesic (pain-killing) system. Dr. Seymour Ehrenpreis of the Chicago Medical School told the Second World Congress on Pain that he and his colleagues were using a drug, D-phenylalanine (DP), in a group of 12 chronic pain sufferers.

In most cases, he said, relief was obtained within three days after drug administration was begun and lasted for up to 30 days after it was stopped.

In Manchester, England, it was found that cigarette smoking accelerated the speed with which food was passed from the stomach into the small intestine.

Dr. David Grimes of the Royal Infirmary and Dr. John Goddard of the University of Manchester believe that this may be important in the onset of duodenal ulcers and in the delay of healing. They believe that a few cigarettes smoked after a meal may result in the stomach's and duodenum's acidity.

These findings may be a valuable addition to what is already known about the relationship between smoking and peptic ulcers of the stomach and the duodenum.

Clothes Also Make The Woman: Study

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (UPI) — It's been said clothes make the man, and a new study by a Pennsylvania professor shows clothes also make the woman.

Dr. Rebecca Holman said Monday she surveyed almost 200 male and female Pennsylvania State University students for their reactions to seven pictures of the same female model dressed in different styles.

The professor said she found a number of significantly different views about the woman, depending on the clothes she wore.

"A woman wishing to be known as a feminist might choose one style . . . (and) a woman who did not wish to be seen as a feminist might choose another style in that same situation," according to the Penn State marketing professor.

"None of the seven styles of clothing was, by most standards, revealing or daring," Dr. Holman said.

Each was asked to agree or disagree with statements such as whether the woman was from an affluent family, was a women's libber, a sorority member, a leader, was self-assured or sexy looking.

The results showed, for example, that subjects who saw a picture of the model in jeans, a sweater and a corduroy jacket said she was a self-assured leader, in a sorority and interested in women's liberation.

But the same model dressed in jeans and a v-neck sweater was seen as lacking in self-confidence and being unsympathetic with women's liberation.

"The same model wearing the same sweater and shirt and shoes but with widely belled jeans and a leather jacket trimmed in fur was perceived as not in a sorority and not from an affluent family," Dr. Holman said.

Stores Weigh Up

OTTAWA (CP) — Metric moves ahead this summer in three test areas, where food items such as meat, fish, poultry, produce, cheese and candy, will be weighed and sold in retail stores in grams and kilograms. The retail food industry will begin to convert scales in Kamloops, Peterborough, Ont., and Sherbrooke, Que., on July 1. The rest of Canada will start Jan. 1, 1980, and the program is expected to be completed by the end of 1981.

DRINK LIKE A FISH IN GOOD COMPANY

EGREMONT, England (CP) — Just before closing time, a bus driver dashed into the public bar of the Blue Bell Inn and ordered a glass of water. Landlord Tony Wilson obliged, thinking it was for a stricken passenger.

He was right — but the passenger was a goldfish.

Joe Quinn, the bus driver, found it flapping around on the floor of his bus, realized it was on its last gasp and drove to the nearest pub in this northwest Cumberland village.

Now the goldfish is swimming around merrily, in a pint pot behind the bar at the Blue Bell Inn, and has become an established favorite with the customers.

When you crave a cup of Java and your percolator is not handy (or when you don't want to brew a whole pot for just one serving), a plain old Styrofoam "hot cup" is all you really need.

Just cut four small holes (about ⅛-inch across) in the bottom of the plastic tumbler. Then line the inside of the container with a drip-machine filter or a clean white paper towel and add a couple of tablespoons of ground coffee. Next, hold your "homemade espresso pot" over your coffee cup and fill it with boiling water. The finished brew will drizzle through the openings in the Styrofoam cup's bottom and into your mug.

Before the Judge

Robert Drummond, 23, of 930 Old Esquimalt, had lost his licence because of an earlier impaired driving conviction.

"Normally you'd go to jail but if you do you'd be out of the service," said Alder.

He fined Drummond $250 on each count.

Perry Lee Jones of 130 Burnside punched two holes in the wall following an argument elsewhere in which punches were thrown.

Jones pleaded guilty to wilful damage and was fined $50 and ordered to pay for the $50 damage.

Judge William Ostler ruled there was not enough evidence to convict Wayne Soltys of 1086 Colville of assaulting a police officer. He also dismissed an impaired driving charge.

The charges arose out of a minor accident at a downtown traffic light early July 15.

Ostler ruled there was no justification for Soltys to leave the accident scene. He recognized there was a threat of possible abuse by the other driver but said it wasn't significant in that Soltys, accompanied by a man, was larger than the other driver who was with a woman.

The fact that Soltys notified police once he returned home "doesn't let him off," said the judge.

In convicting Soltys of the over .08 charge, Ostler questioned whether he had enough time between reporting the accident and the arrival of police at his home to have consumed the amount of rye which he claimed.

"It's utterly absurd to say he had all those drinks," said Ostler.

The obstruction charge arose out of an attempt by the accused to consume more alcohol while a police officer was reading him the demand for a breathalyser test.

In convicting him, Ostler dismissed the assault charge, saying he was not satisfied there was any wilful assault and what occurred was the result of both of them reaching for the glass at the same time.

Soltys was fined $400 on the over .08 charge and $50 each for leaving the scene and obstruction charges.

Suspended Sentence In Fatal City Crash

An 18-year-old whose driving caused the death of a friend was given a suspended sentence in county court Monday after pleading guilty to dangerous driving.

Judge E.J.C. Stewart said he found it hard to find a proper disposition in the case, but concluded it would be wrong to send Roos to jail for any length of time and difficult to believe that a fine would be appropriate.

He said Roos had been punished by his own carelessness. He noted a previous record of driving offences and disagreed with defence counsel that the fatality had been due to an error of judgment.

Roos drove his car and passenger Kevin Skailes, 17, on Rockland near Oak Shade in excess of the posted 20 mph speed Nov. 1, 1978. He lost control on a narrow, sloping curve and the car caught fire when it struck a pole trapping Skailes inside.

Roos got out and tried to rescue his friend but a guy wire attached to the utility pole prevented him from opening the door before the fire drove him back.

Counsel William McElmoyle said it was a tragedy Roos would live with anguish, and because he drove without insurance, is subject to a civil suit for damages in the death of Skailes.

Two Men Spared Pen For Possessing Drugs

Two men "on the verge of being candidates for penitentiary time" were sentenced to two years less a day in county court Monday for possession of $800-$900 worth of restricted drugs and syringes.

Paul Douglas MacRae and Adam Alfred Milne, both 25, pleaded guilty to having a quantity of goods knowing they were stolen from a McGill and Orme drugstore last Feb. 25.

Other charges of breaking and entering the store and a doctor's office, and of possession of stolen goods, were stayed by the Crown.

Judge Thomas G. Darling noted both men were drug users which he attributed to their criminal activities and both had records of note.

"I intend to impose sentences of such severity as to deter others from a similar course," he said.

He would not send the men to the penitentiary, but would allow one more chance in the provincial correctional system, recommending the sentences be served in an institution like Redonda Bay camp.

As far as MacRae is concerned, the term will be concurrent with sentences of 12 and 18 months he is serving for breaking and entering at the Royal Bank, and possession of prohibited weapons — two sawed-off shotguns. Both offences were committed after Feb. 25 last year.

Darling noted both men had been in custody awaiting disposition of the case for about three months.

Opening lead - nine of hearts.

Assume you're in six no-trump and West leads a heart. When dummy appears, you see eleven sure tricks. Your only real problem now is to find the best way of trying for a twelfth trick.

One possibility is to win the heart in dummy and play the deuce of spades towards your queen. If East has the king of spades, your mission is accomplished — whether he goes up with the king or plays low. Your chance of finding East with the king of spades is 50 per cent.

Another possibility is to lead a low club from dummy and play low from your hand. This method of play succeeds if the clubs are divided 3-3. In that case, dummy's fourth club becomes your twelfth trick. However, the probability of finding a 3-3 club division is only 36 per cent.

Oddly enough, your best chance nonetheless lies in conceding a club trick at trick two. Why? Because you not only have a shot at a 3-3 club division, but you also have a chance for a squeeze if the defender who holds more than three clubs also has the king of spades.

Consider the present case. Let's say West wins the low club at trick two and continues with a heart. After you've cashed your ace of spades, as well as your three heart tricks and five diamond tricks, you will have three cards left — the queen of spades and A-8 of clubs. Dummy, at this point, will have the K-4-3 of clubs. But what will West do when you cash your fifth diamond and he has to discard from a holding of the king of spades and Q-10-5 of clubs?

West will find himself squeezed on your last diamond lead and he will be unable to respond successfully to the pressure. Your decision to play for a 3-3 club split and then fall back on a squeeze if the clubs are not evenly divided is more than West can cope with.

SOLUTIONS WEDNESDAY

CRYPTIC: 4

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Astrological Forecast for Wednesday, January 24 by Sydney Omarr

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Take long-range view. Refuse to be intimidated by one with personality like a "wet blanket." Set your own pace, open lines of communication, see places and people as they exist. Steer away from self-deception trap of wishful thinking.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Organize material, files, accept challenge of added responsibility. Get financial facts of life. Partner, mate figures prominently. Nothing is halfway — the chips are down in personal and professional areas. If playing games, move on!

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Lie low, play waiting game, be positive concerning source material, contracts, special quotes, permissions. Accent on publicity, marital status, ability to join forces with a "former opponent." Aries, Libra figure in scenario.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): New approach indicated in connection with employment, dependents, health and pets. Leo, Aquarius figure prominently. You could meet exciting, creative, charismatic individual. Creative juices flow — you feel more vital, alive, optimistic.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Follow through on hunch, learn by teaching, make changes, utilize talent for showmanship. Cancer, Scorpio, Aquarius persons figure prominently. Young person could set pace, but maintains respect for you. You get chance to initiate building program for future security.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You find "running room." What appeared a serious error can be turned into a definite advantage. Gemini, Sagittarius figure prominently. Residence, structure, solidity, security command spotlight. Be versatile, examine various possibilities, openings.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Relatives, trips, special messages and appointments dominate scenario. Highlight ways to express, to imprint style, to reunite with relative who has gone off "deep end." You may have to do some tearing down for ultimate purpose of rebuilding.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You're on brink of discovery. Know it, proceed accordingly. Gemini, Virgo, Sagittarius figure prominently — and so does the number 5. Accent on payments, collections, locating missing ingredients. You are on right path.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Take lead, set pace, be a self-starter. Judgment, intuitive intellect are likely to be on target. Key now is confidence, personality, personal appearances. Be direct, imprint style. Cycle is high — be aware of it.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Check behind the scenes — define terms, check directions, be positive concerning commitments. One who whispers sweet nothings may have just that to offer — nothing. Protect yourself in emotional clinches.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Obtain valid hint from Aquarius message. Finish what you start. You gain perspective which could result in career advancement. Superior will concede that your views have been vindicated. Long-range view now could enhance chances for success.

IF JANUARY 24 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you have unusual, compelling voice. Your sense of drama enables you to graphically illustrate meanings, beliefs. You are attractive to the opposite sex — you have extraordinary powers of persuasion. Taurus, Libra, Scorpio persons play key roles in your life. February and November should be your most important months of 1979, a year featuring significant transformations in life style. A change of residence or remodeling of home might be high on agenda, especially in September. You are unorthodox, you appreciate fine foods, luxury items and you are somewhat self-indulgent. It is possible for you to strike "pay dirt" in February.

Cambodia Massacres Found

BANGKOK (AP) — The new Vietnam-backed government of Cambodia said Monday the bones of hundreds of "innocent" victims of Premier Pol Pot's fallen regime were found in shallow graves and in a prison in the capital of Phnom Penh.

Accounts of the discoveries were released by the news media of the provisional government which, with major backing from the Vietnamese army, overthrew Pol Pot earlier this month. The accounts cannot be verified but they are similar to stories told by refugees in the last four years.

A broadcast by the Voice of the Kampuchean (Cambodian) People said the decomposing bodies of hundreds of "innocent officials" were discovered at a former Phnom Penh high school that had been turned into a prison.

"Some of them died with their shackled legs tied to their beds," the broadcast said. "The bodies were nude and some were lying face down with their hands handcuffed behind them.

The Pol Pot government took power after the Khmer Rouge victory over a U.S.-backed government in 1975 and, according to refugees, killed many former officials, evacuated the cities and forced many to work on agrarian co-operatives.

The broadcast said the tools of death and torture — American-made hoes and spades and Chinese handcuffs, bags of cement and lime — were found at the school in the Tual Saleang area.

"In the auditorium was elegantly hanging a portrait of Pol Pot addressing a crowd through a microphone," it said. "Pits were found in the vicinity of the school but nobody could guess how many were buried in each."

The Phnom Penh news agency SPK carried a similar report.

"It was only necessary to uncover a thin layer of earth over the mass graves to find skulls and sections of skeletons," it said. "And here and there above ground one could still find pieces of human tissue. One could still discover some skulls encircled by bands of cloth and arm bones clasped together by iron chains."

SPK said mass graves had been dug along Route 7 in Cambodia's eastern Kompong Cham province and that 300 to 500 villagers had been massacred in each of seven villages.

Soviets Getting $6M Bill?

OTTAWA (UPC) — The Canadian Broadcasting Corp. says Canada will submit a $6 million bill to the Soviet Union today to cover some of the costs of recovering debris of a fallen nuclear-powered Soviet satellite last year.

Cosmos 954 fell from orbit last January and disintegrated as it flamed through the Earth's atmosphere, sprinkling the Northwest Territories with minute particles of radioactive debris.

For more than 10 months, until last October, the Canadian Armed Forces collected more than 3,000 tiny fragments from the satellite under the direction of the Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd.

Latest government estimates put the cost of the operation at more than $14 million, but the CBC reported Monday Canada's bill "won't reflect the total cost of the clean-up." It estimated the bill "will be closer to $6 million."

BRITISH DRINK MORE

LONDON (Reuter) — The average Briton drinks twice as much alcohol as 10 years ago, official figures disclosed Monday show. Government statistics comparing consumer spending showed that in 1977 the British spent almost as much on alcohol as they did on clothing, while less money went for food and tobacco.

MPs' Focus Will Be On Election

By KITTY McKINSEY
Canadian Press

OTTAWA — MPs returned to work today with one thing paramount in their minds: Election.

Opposition party spokesmen said their parties will be blasting the government's economic record in the countdown to the general election Prime Minister Trudeau promises to call in the spring.

"The government will be doing its best to heighten the national unity issue, because that's the issue it wants to fight on," Stanley Knowles, veteran New Democratic Party House leader, said in an interview.

"Trudeau would fight an election on national unity and that alone, but he can't ignore the economy. The government will be doing it's best to show it has some interest in the economy."

An indication of Trudeau's attitude in the resumed sitting is the government giving top legislative priority to passage of a bill which would empower it to hold national referendums on constitutional questions.

Both NDP and Progressive Conservative strategists say they will use debate on the bill to underline their own constitutional proposals. Both parties say they will not leave the national unity issue to Trudeau alone, even though they feel the economy is a more important issue.

In that connection Conservative Leader Joe Clark attempted Monday to defuse a potentially damaging question of Conservative policy on the separatist Quebec government's professed desire for sovereignty association with the rest of Canada.

Both Clark and David Crombie, former mayor of Toronto and new Conservative MP, have been quoted frequently as saying they would negotiate soveriegnty association with a Quebec government following passage of a provincial referendum. Liberals were expected to maintain a strong attack on the Conservatives on that issue.

But Clark said Monday a Conservative government would have nothing to do with sovereignty association, which would rend the country.

Linda Plans to Carry On Nursing

IOWA CITY, Iowa — Firefighter Linda Eaton says she will continue to nurse her son at the firehouse in defiance of fire department regulations. "I plan to go in Wednesday and have the baby brought (for his feeding)," said Miss Eaton, 26, who was suspended for one day Monday after nursing her son, Ian, while on duty. But city officials say that if a second feeding takes place on city time, she will "again be subject to disciplinary action, possibly of a stricter nature."

INDIO, Calif. — Susan Ford and her secret service agent-fiance have quietly taken out a marriage licence, but they're not saying when the wedding will be. The licence was granted by the Riverside County clerk's office. "There was no fuss," clerk supervisor Margaret Ritzel said Monday. "We kept it as quiet as possible."

WINCHESTER, England — A 78-year-old widow who could not bear her 48-year-old lover leaving her for a younger woman hired a hit man to beat him up, a court was told. Furthermore, she had him beaten up a second time when she found the job had not been done properly. The lover, Anthony Nicholson, who lived with Georgina Maxwell for 10 years, was left unconscious the second time and treated for multiple skull and leg fractures. Mrs. Maxwell received an 18-month suspended jail sentence Monday.

NEW DELHI — The Dalai Lama, Tibet's exiled leader, said Monday he is skeptical of recent Chinese overtures for him to return to his homeland. The 43-year-old Dalai Lama, considered a god-king in Tibet, told reporters between meetings with Indian officials: "They (the Chinese) have been doing that for years but we have no official word." In an interview, however, the Dalai Lama was reported to have said he would be glad to meet with Chinese vice-premier Teng Hsiao-Peng to discuss Tibet. A New Delhi dispatch from Japan's Kyodo news service quoted him as saying Teng "is a little more liberal, a little more sincere" than other Chinese leaders.

ROCHESTER, N.Y. — Kenneth Bianchi, a 27-year-old man being held in Bellingham, Wash., on a stolen property charge, has been eliminated as a suspect in one of three strangling deaths in the early 1970s, local officials say. Maj. Anthony Fantigrossi said city police are awaiting information relating to the other two stranglings, but feel Bianchi, a Rochester native, probably will be eliminated as a suspect in those cases too. Bianchi has also has been interviewed by investigators attempting to solve the Los Angeles Hillside Strangler slayings.

HOUSTON — Millionaire Cullen Davis is out of jail today — his first day of freedom in five months — after a hopelessly deadlocked jury prompted a mistrial in his 12-week murder-for-hire trial. "If anyone thinks I am guilty, they are wrong," Davis said after returning to his Fort Worth, Tex., home. He had been charged with hiring a man to murder the judge in his bitter divorce trial. "I'm tickled to death that this phase is over," Davis said. "I just hope it's the end of it." But, Davis added, that was only a dim hope, as prosecutors have vowed to seek a new trial.

BOY'S LAETRILE CUT

PLYMOUTH, Mass. (AP) — A Superior Court judge today ordered the parents of three-year-old leukemia victim Chad Green to stop giving their child Laetrile.

Judge Guy Volterra also ruled that the boy, who has been the centre of a controversy over cancer treatment, must remain in the legal custody of the state, even though he can live with his parents.

Besides Laetrile, the parents are forbidden from giving Chad enzyme enemas or excess doses of vitamins. However, they may continue to feed the boy natural foods.

During a two-week hearing that ended last Friday, the state contended that Chad suffers from cyanide poisoning caused by the Laetrile and vitamin A poisoning brought on by high doses of this vitamin.

Laetrile is a trademark for a substance derived from the chemical amygdalin, which is found naturally in the pits of apricots and peaches and in bitter almonds. Advocates claim it is an effective cancer treatment, but the U.S. Food and Drug Administration and the medical establishment in the country have said there is no proof it is of any value in treating cancer.

7 New Kinds Of Sweet Corn

Most home gardeners like to grow their own sweet corn because it has a better flavor than bought produce. The reason is that the sugars in corn start converting to starches within a few minutes after picking, and much of the sweetness is lost after a few hours.

Three are classed as "early season," maturing in 64 to 74 days, which is 10 to 20 days later than the older varieties in the 53- to 55-day range.

The first is Earligem, 64 days to maturity, said to show excellent vigor in cooler soils. The ears are 7½ in. long with 12 to 16 rows of kernels.

Goldenvee is listed as similar, with bright yellow kernels of excellent flavor and tenderness according to the advance releases. You will notice the number of times the word "excellent" is used in describing new introductions. It is up to the home gardener to decide whether this description is warranted.

Tablevee is the third, maturing in 74 days with large, long ears, and no further description is given. Local gardeners must test these and find if they are suited to our coastal climate.

Flavorveé is a mid-season variety, 86 days to maturity, with 8½-in. ears and 14 to 18 rows of kernels.

Early Gold and Silver matures in 62 days with 8½-in. ears and 12 to 14 rows of kernels of "excellent" eating quality.

Burgundy Delight goes a step further in being described as outstanding eating quality, with an unusual burgundy colored stalk and husk. Matures in 68 days; 8-in. ears and 12 to 14 rows of tender white and gold kernels.

White Sunglow is the last of the new sweet corn introductions and difficult to place. It is said to mature three weeks earlier than silver queen, but the latter is not listed in the company's previous catalogue. A further comparison is "ears larger and much higher yields."

Success with sweet corn depends a lot on the season and the way the seed is sown.

Sweet corn is wind pollinated and must be sown in blocks so that the pollen from the outer row on the windward side is distributed over the rest of the plants. Sowing in a single row is nearly always disappointing.

Warm temperatures at the right time of growth is also important, a condition we cannot depend on in our coastal climate.

It is not convenient in the home garden to have the entire crop mature in three to seven days.

To avoid this the first sowing is made indoors in pots to have 6 to 8 in. seedlings ready for transplanting outdoors around the middle of June.

The same day as transplanting is done, an outdoor sowing is made, and in a good season another sowing is possible at the beginning of July. This method spreads the crop for a period more suited to family needs.

It is worth recording that sweet corn seed will not germinate properly in a soil temperature of 15 degs. C or less, therefore early outdoor sowings here are usually disappointing. A week — or two-weeks delay is worthwhile when a good crop of delicious freshly picked corn is dropped into a pot of boiling water, smothered with butter, and really enjoyed.

Smith Fears 'Foisted' Pay Hikes

A provision of the new Essential Services Disputes Act could allow untenable wage settlements to be foisted on municipalities, Oak Bay Mayor Brian Smith said Monday.

Smith said the act's chief factors are a 90-day compulsory cooling off period and the right of unions to ask for binding arbitration if there is no agreement.

He noted a recent example at Port Alberni where employees were awarded 16 per cent in increased wages.

"We don't want 16 per cent settlements imposed by some well-meaning, nutty arbitrator," he added.

Smith said he appreciates that teachers and non-teaching school staffs will be treated equally by the act.

92% Rate Police as Good, Poll Shows

A survey conducted as part of a research project for the B.C. Police Commission shows that most British Columbians have confidence in provincial law enforcement agencies, but at the same time many feel less safe walking the streets than they did five years ago.

The poll was undertaken in March and February last year by University of Victoria sociologists Daniel Koenig and Gabrielle Goudy.

The sociologists estimate that of 1,500 questionnaires sent out, 1,248 actually reached addressees and 907 — or 73 per cent — were returned.

Just over 92 per cent of respondents rated police in their area as good or very good, while only one per cent were neutral on the question and 6.4 per cent rated law enforcement as bad or very bad.

The strong support for police came despite the fact that 26 per cent of the respondents said they or members of their household had been victimized by theft in the preceding year.

Of those surveyed, 47 per cent also said there was a place within a mile of their home where they'd be afraid to walk alone at night, and 46 per cent said they felt less safe on the streets today than five years ago.

The poll also dealt with matters unrelated to police services, including whether or not people are satisfied with their lives and what they thought of the provincial political parties.

More than 80 per cent were happy with their families, homes, standard of living, health and jobs. Almost as many were happy with themselves (79 per cent); non-working activities (76 per cent); incomes (72 per cent); amount of free time (68 per cent) and kinds of goods and services available (49.4 per cent).

At the same time, 65 per cent said they were unhappy with the government's handling of the economy and 56 per cent were dissatisifed with the behavior of political leaders.

In rating provincial political parties 56 per cent of respondents said Social Credit received best marks for ability while the NDP were the most honest, responsive and trustworthy.

Newport Suites Get Nod

Zoning for a new five-storey apartment building at Newport and Transit was approved by Oak Bay council Monday following a public hearing.

A 10-suite building proposed for the former Twin Cedars property at 1280 Newport will have landscaping and underground parking for a minimum 16 vehicles.

The five storeys is exclusive of basement, but over-all height will not exceed 43 feet, six inches, including a penthouse.

A previous land-use contract for the site, which would have permitted slightly less over-all height, was repealed.

A resident of Transit opposite the site was concerned about the possibility of loss of view and noted other buildings in the immediate vicinity are limited to three storeys.

The developer's architect said the fourth and fifth floors would be set back from the edge of the other floors and that the additional height would be about four feet.

Aldermen also adopted a development permit bylaw that supplements the zoning bylaw as required by provincial legislation; a bylaw requiring all new housing to provide paved parking for at least two vehicles, one covered by a roof of at least 200 square feet, and connected to a public street, and an identical bylaw amending the Uplands Regulations Bylaw.

There were no public representations on these three matters.

IDEAS ASKED ON FUTURE OF ST.ANN'S

Victorians have been urged by Provincial Secretary Hugh Curtis to put forward proposals for the future use of St. Ann's Academy.

Last week Curtis ruled the historic Roman Catholic school, now used as government offices, would not be turned into a tourist attraction. A businessman had applied for a 50-year lease with intentions to use the grounds for "mini-world" tourist operation.

The minister ruled against the project because he said the site had too much historical value to the city.

Curtis said Monday he'd like to hear from Victorians, either individually or in groups, as to what the future should hold for the academy.

Social Security Queried

OTTAWA (CP) — In a radical shift from past advice, the Canadian Council on Social Development says governments should no longer pay social benefits such as family allowance and old age security to rich and poor alike.

The council also called today for complete restructuring of Canada's pension system, including a mandatory retirement age of 70 rather than 65, and a better financial deal for women and individuals who want to retire early.

The council is hammering out a major report with the theme that only genuinely needy people should receive such benefits as the family allowance and old age pension.

"We're starting to question the universal application of social programs," council programs director Geoff Norquay told the special Senate committee on retirement.

He said the report, scheduled for release in about six weeks, concludes that government social programs have failed to do the job they were supposed to do — redistribute money to the poor.

"That's a lot of money," Norquay said.

Programs he singled out included family allowance paid to all mothers, old age security paid to all Canadians at age 65 and unemployment insurance paid to jobless persons fitting certain criteria. All are paid regardless of the recipient's other income.

Although the council has not worked out the finer details, it is thinking that the benefits should be taxed back 100 per cent from families with above-average incomes. The family of four cut-off would be about $23,000 while the cut-off for a single person would be about $9,900.

The exception to this would be medical care programs which should remain universal, Norquay said.

Norquay said the problem in the idea is that most people have paid into such programs and can thus claim a right to draw benefits.

"That's a very tricky issue," he said.

However, he also said it is difficult to justify paying benefits to the rich when there are thousands of elderly women across the country living on less than $5,000 a year.

The council report is based on a study of government social programs during the last 15 years. Norquay called it a radical shift in council policy.

In a brief to the committee, the council urged creation of a national organization to represent the needs of the elderly and develop policies to strengthen their standing in society.

The brief, written by economist David Ross, calls on governments to "ultimately" prohibit the forced retirement of those who want to work.

It recommends changes in age of retirement, income status of retirees and improvements in employment and social services for the retired.

The council says workers should be allowed to retire, with pension benefits, before or after age 65 which has become a widely-used, arbitrary cut-off date. Most private and public pension plans do not provide benefit payments until age 65.

The council says other factors should determine retirement age: Years already worked, will or desire to work, job skills and competence.

USC Tops '78 Goal: $3.9M

OTTAWA (CP) — The Unitarian Service Committee (USC) received $3,911,909 in funds and gifts in 1978, it was announced Monday.

The USC said in its annual review that the 1978 total exceeded its original goal.

The generosity of Victoria Times' readers contributed more than $32,000 to the total collected.

Founded in 1944 by Dr. Lotta Hitchmanova, the non-governmental agency provides funds and other aid to needy countries.

Federal and provincial grants totalled $778,271 but 80 per cent of all contributions came from ordinary citizens, the review said.

A large portion of the money and gifts collected will go Vietnam, Lesotho, Bangladesh, Indonesia and Nepal in 1979, the review said.

BLUNDER UNDER overpass embarrassed the heck out of unidentified truck driver today when big rig proved too high to make it under railway bridge on Dominion Road in Esquimalt. Grating noise alerted him that all was not well. Damage was high.

Storm Adds to U.K. Woes

Times News Services

LONDON — Striking locomotive drivers halted Britain's railroads for the third time in a week today day which, coinciding with the worst blizzard in 15 years, left London virtually deserted.

"If you are still in bed, stay there," a BBC commentator told the public. "If not, go back to bed."

The blizzard blocked highways, closed airports, played havoc with bus and underground services.

Tens of thousands of commuters simply abandoned the effort to get to work and stayed home. Most stores and offices were manned only by skeleton staffs, if at all.

The railway shutdown, to be followed by still another Thursday, immobilized the strike-plagued nation even before it had recovered from a 24-hour walkout Monday for higher pay by 1.5 million local government workers.

Although the walkout should have ended early today, thousands of strikers — who are demanding a 40 per cent pay hike on their average $90 a week pay — stayed off the job.

Their unions threatened continued "guerrilla action" of lightning walkouts designed to make life as disagreeable as possible for the rest of the country.

The government estimated today that between 175,000 and 200,000 workers have been laid off so far as a result of an 11 days-old national strike by 100,000 truck drivers, which has blockaded ports and factories and hit food, raw materials and imports and exports.

About 30,000 angry strikers from all over the country held a protest rally in London and marched on Parliament, many chanting "all-out strike." Union leaders warned that disruptions will continue indefinitely in some areas.

Alan Fisher, general secretary of the National Union of Public Employees, warned of "widespread chaos" unless Prime Minister James Callaghan's Labor government approves a base rate of $120 for a 35-hour week for public service workers.

Shah Cancels Visit

Times News Services

Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi of Iran has decided to postpone indefinitely his planned visit to the United States because of President Jimmy Carter's apparent support for Ayatullah Khomeini, sources close to the monarch said today in Marrakech.

The shah and Empress Farah arrived there Monday to a low-key welcome from Morocco's King Hassan II. Moroccan officials said at the time the shah intended to remain in Morocco for about three days, then fly to the United States.

Members of the shah's entourage said there has been a change of plan, but it was not clear whether the shah intended to remain in Morocco or move to another country.

In Cairo, a spokesman for President Anwar Sadat said the Egyptian leader had invited the shah, who spent the first six days of his "vacation" with Sadat in Aswan, to return.

The spokesman said the shah accepted and told Sadat "he would be glad to spend most of his holidays in Egypt because he considers himself among his family."

Several other countries are being considered, the sources said, including Saudi Arabia, Britain and France.

Meanwhile, in Tehran, Iran's military chief called on the nation's 430,000-man army to defend Prime Min-

Arafat In Power Struggle

DAMASCUS (Reuter) — Yasser Arafat is fighting for control of the Palestine Liberation Organization after guerrilla leaders ended a conference today with a bitter power struggle unresolved.

Conference sources said Arafat was being challenged by more radical leaders who want more say in policy-making on the PLO's executive committee.

Meanwhile, reports from Tel Aviv said Palestinian gunners in Lebanon attacked settlements in the northeastern part of the country.

The shelling came a day after a mysterious remote-control truck bomb in Beirut killed a top Palestinian guerrilla official and Arafat aide . (See page 3).

Donut King Probed

RCMP commercial crime officers have seized the books and records of Donut-King Restaurants Ltd., a Victoria-based company involved in franchising a fast-food marketing chain.

A police spokesman said today officers raided nine offices and residences in Victoria and a law office in Vancouver, all on Monday.

The spokesman declined to elaborate on the nature of the investigation but said the company's activities have been under investigation for nearly two months by the RCMP and latterly by Saanich police.

The company was incorporated on Dec. 2, 1977 by Demetrios Psyllakis, of 2576 Estevan.

Psyllakis said today he sold the company last June to George Sheldon Parkhurst, of 2777 Benson Place.

In the past year Donut-King has sold three franchises in Greater Victoria, as well as one in Duncan, Port Alberni and other points north on the Island.

Parkhurst, originally from Belleville, arrived in Victoria two years ago and has been involved in numerous development and franchise companies including Trizak Development, Ye Olde Kingston Car Company Ltd., 471 Trans Canada Holdings Ltd., Donut-King Restaurants Ltd., Donut-King Franchise Services Ltd., Ronvan Equipment Ltd., Ten Mile Developments Corp., and Sy's Chicken Shack Inc.

Tsehum Marina Expansion Killed

A controversial plan to expand a marina in Tsehum Harbor was killed Monday when North Saanich council voted unanimously to turn down all future applications for water leases in the area.

Oak Bay developer Bob Wright, who hoped to nearly double the size of his North Saanich Marina, said today he is extremely disappointed with the outcome.

But he said he will now press on with a plan to build houses on 22 acres of property adjacent to the harbor area.

Wright said he will apply to the B.C. Land Commission to have the land removed from the Agricultural Land Reserve. The property is already zoned for residential development on minimum half-acre lots.

"It's obviously a very desirable site," Westwood said.

Monday night's vote followed a close four-to-three decision by council to reject North Saanich Advisory Planning Commission's majority report on Wright's proposal.

The APC, in its report released two weeks ago, recommended limited marina expansion and cluster-type housing in the area.

Wright earlier promised to dedicate 12 acres of shorefront on Blue Heron Basin and Tsaykum Harbor to the municipality as park land if council approved the plan including an expansion of the marina from 350 berths to about 500 and construction of about 60 dwelling units on the remaining 10 acres.

Wright said, however, the offer will now be withdrawn.

"Obviously there will be no further offering of a nature sanctuary," he said.

"It's too bad. All of that land would have gone to the public as a gift and now it's been lost . ... at least in the short run."

Wright said Westwood had lost sight of the objectives of the development plan and had regarded it as a political fight.

"He (Westwood) showed he was not prepared to listen from day one," Wright said.

Westwood, however, defended the actions of council.

"We're just delivering what the people who elected us want," he said.

He denied the fight was political.

"I've no axe to grind with Wright or anyone. I'm doing what any good municipal politician should be doing . . . listening to the people."

. . . And Now Smoking Fines

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Health Minister Monique Begin announced Monday her department is drafting a bill to enforce non-smoking regulations in public transportation.

The bill, expected in two or three months, would give public carriers the responsibility of enforcing regulations about smoking in non-smoking areas, the minister told reporters.

Begin, who made the announcement at a press conference to kick off National Education Week on Smoking, said the proposed law would also allow carriers to fine customers for disobeying those regulations.

"To avoid creating criminal records for being caught in a non-smoking area with a cigarette, we will shift the responsibility to the carriers," he said.

A department spokesman said the amount customers could be fined has not yet been decided.

Begin, who kicked a pack-a-day habit two years ago, released statistics Monday showing that a majority of Canadians age 15 and older — 58 per cent of the population — are non-smokers.

The number of non-smokers has risen steadily from 50.2 per cent in 1965 and 55.3 per cent in 1974, she announced.

However, the number of teenage girls age 15 or older and adult women who smoke has remained fairly constant while it is men who have been renouncing the evils of nicotine.

Begin said that smoking among males age 20 and over has declined since 1965.

Americans Big on Maggie

By PAUL NICHOLSON
Times Staff

Americans make up almost 90 per cent of the passengers who ride the Princess Marguerite, says a study released today.

In fact, the number of Canadian passengers aboard the government-owned Seattle-to-Victoria ferry was so small — 6.9 per cent — that they were almost outnumbered by riders from the eastern U.S. states of New York, Pennsylvania and Massachusetts at 6.5 per cent.

The survey, taken during a week in mid-July, covered 1,859 persons and found 88.8 per cent were from the United States, 6.9 from Canada and 4.3 from other countries.

Surprisingly, most of the American passengers, 52.5 per cent, were from states other than Washington and Oregon.

The survey also determined 55 per cent of the passengers who boarded in Seattle returned the same day after spending an average of $15 per person in Victoria.

The 45 per cent who stayed one or more nights in Canada spent about $38 per person daily.

Of those interviewed, 98.8 per cent said they felt the fares were reasonable.

The satisfaction with the fare rates led the Vancouver firm that undertook the study to suggest that 1979 fares could increase without unduly affecting load factors.

Tourism Minister Elwood Veitch, however, has given no indication whether he will be recommending higher fares for the money-losing steamship.

Passenger traffic to Victoria on the Marguerite was up 12 per cent over the previous year and she carried six per cent more automobiles, 37 per cent more motorcycles and 26 per cent more bicycles.

The survey determined most hoteliers are apparently unaware that a significant percentage of the passengers remain one night or longer in Canada.

Last summer the Marguerite spent almost $350,000 in the Victoria area on food and beverage purchases and another $350,000 for the vessel's annual refit.

The Marguerite begins its 1979 season May 18.

RCMP Attitude Irks Teachers

The 23,000-member Canadian Association of University Teachers said experiences in the last 20 years indicate that the force may not know the difference between legitimate dissent and illegal subversion.

The observation was made in a brief heard today by the federal royal commission into RCMP wrongdoing.

Many academics believed the security service and its military equivalent were trying to enforce a Victorian morality that no longer existed.

"The security forces have sometimes argued that the sexual activities of individuals may make them liable to blackmail," the association said. "This is true only if the consequences of the individual's actions, if made public, will inevitably result in the loss of his or her job.

"If this is not the case, there is not much leverage for the blackmailer. It should be made clear by the government, therefore, that neither divorce, cohabitation without marriage nor homosexuality will result in the loss of a job or a security clearance."

Many academics also felt the RCMP equated left-wing politics with subversion. Security forces had tried in the 1960s to recruit informers among students campaigning for nuclear disarmament. In the 1970s, the Waffle group in the New Democratic Party apparently was regarded as subversive.

Teachers feared that legal political activity of this type was being used in secret security reports to keep qualified people from getting government jobs.

The same was true of alleged surveillance of Grace Hartman when she ran for president of the Canadian Union of Public Employees. It had also been suggested the RCMP infiltrated unions and fed information to employers.

Mr. Justice David C. McDonald, chairman of the royal commission, was urged to recommend that legal political parties and unions not be infiltrated or watched by the RCMP unless specific charges against individuals were under investigation.

Academic run-ins with the force during the last 20 years suggested little RCMP awareness of the importance of civil liberties, the association said.

It recommended that the RCMP and the military place more emphasis on educating agents about civil rights "and the nature of legal dissent in Canadian society."

The association supported university training for security personnel but not if these personnel were also carrying out general surveillance of teachers and students.

Schreyer Launches Into His New Duties

OTTAWA (CP) — Edward Schreyer is wasting no time in assuming his new duties as the 22nd Governor-General since Confederation.

Only a day after being invested as the Queen's representative, the former Manitoba premier today receives the credentials of about 130 members of the diplomatic corps, including about 40 ambassadors and high commissioners accredited to Canada but living in the United States.

Although diplomats normally present their credentials only to the head of state — Canada's is Queen Elizabeth — the Governor-General is authorized to act on her behalf.

The reception by the nation's new number one host and hostess is only one of several formal, stylized events this week at the 141-year-old Rideau Hall, vacated Sunday night by retiring Jules Leger and his wife, Gaby.

When Lily Schreyer, the new chatelaine of the rambling stone mansion on an 88-acre wooded lot, had her first tour of the house, she exclaimed she felt a little like Cinderella.

And true to the fairy tale analogy, the Schreyers were driven Monday from Parliament to the house across Sussex Drive from Prime Minister Trudeau's residence in an open, horse-drawn carriage.

Three-and-a-half-year-old Toban, the youngest of four Schreyer children, squirmed throughout the hour-long ceremony in the Senate chamber and was not amused by the prospects of sitting still again for a photo session with Trudeau and the cabinet.

The energetic tyke has already become the darling of newspaper photographers as they try to capture every yawn and funny face he makes during the otherwise sobre affairs associated with his father's appointment.

Postie Off Gov't Hook

OTTAWA (CP) — The government has been refused leave to prosecute a letter carrier for alleged illegal strike activity because it tried to abuse a procedure of the Public Service Staff Relations Board.

In a recent ruling, the board rejected the government's application for leave to prosecute Alexander Power, president of Local 1 of the Letter Carriers Union of Canada.

After a brief illegal strike at the end of July, the government sought leave Aug. 29 to prosecute Power. On Sept. 5, the government withdrew the application. Around that time, contract negotiations were being conducted.

Following the resolution of the contract dispute that had led to the illegal strikes, the government again applied for leave to prosecute Power.

The board said it seems "the employer improperly, if innocently, has exploited a procedure of the board for its own tactical purposes."

"Whether the decision to withdraw the first application had an impact on the future conduct of the parties in their negotiations is not, in our view, relevant," the board ruled.

"What is significant is that the intention of the employer was to influence the path that the negotiations were to follow. Once that purpose was achieved and a degree of normalcy in the parties' relationship was established, the only inference . . . that can be drawn from these events is that the employer reserved the right to reinstitute these proceedings."

The board rejected the government's reapplication on Dec. 11 for leave to prosecute because the government had tried to implicate the board "in a course of action affecting the parties' efforts at the bargaining table."

However, the board added that in issuing its ruling it did not condone the instigation of illegal strike action "if indeed the allegations are true."

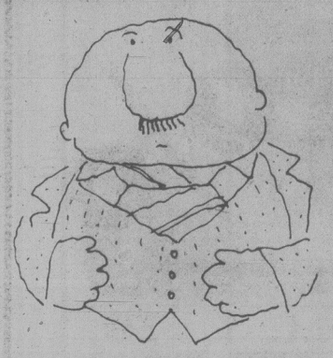
Did you purchase your RRSP at the usual place just because it was convenient?



Many people consider buying RRSP's a matter of convenience. But when you invest only once a year in an RRSP and the outcome of that decision will affect your entire retirement, you owe it to yourself to seek out all the options.

Royal Trust offers six RRSP options. For example, your guaranteed interest returns can vary like a savings account or be guaranteed for 5 years. You can invest in a bond fund, or a mortgage fund. You can participate in our Canadian common stock fund. Or, you can have a self-directed plan.

Did you put this year's RRSP deposit in your own name again, rather than your spouse's?

Under current regulations, you and your spouse will each be allowed up to $1000 of retirement income after age 65 without paying any tax. You can now make all or part of your allowable annual RRSP contribution in your spouse's name and still claim it as a deduction from your taxable income. That way you get the tax deduction now, and you both may claim a $1000 deduction later.

Spousal RRSP's make a lot of sense.

Did you pay a commission to buy your RRSP?

The amount of dollars available for your retirement is dependent on how much is actually invested each year. If you pay a commission, less goes into your account. That doesn't have to be, and it doesn't happen when you buy a Royal Trust RRSP.

Did you make a big mistake?

If you haven't made this year's contribution, you can still avoid these potential mistakes. Talk things over with Royal Trust first.

If you have already made this year's contribution, we can still help. Most RRSP's can be easily transferred without affecting your annual allowable contribution or income tax status. If you agree that a Royal Trust RRSP is better for you than your present plan, we'll have it quickly switched over.

And don't miss depositing for the 1978 tax year because of a lack of funds. Talk to us about a Tax Saver Loan. Your tax savings alone could more than offset your interest costs.

You'll make no mistake by picking up your free RRSP booklet from your nearest Royal Trust branch.

"That's a lot of money," Norquay said.

Programs he singled out included family allowance paid to all mothers, old age security paid to all Canadians at age 65 and unemployment insurance paid to jobless persons fitting certain criteria. All are paid regardless of the recipient's other income.

Although the council has not worked out the finer details, it is thinking that the benefits should be taxed back 100 per cent from families with above-average incomes. The family of four cut-off would be about $23,000 while the cut-off for a single person would be about $9,900.

The exception to this would be medical care programs which should remain universal, Norquay said.

Norquay said the problem in the idea is that most people have paid into such programs and can thus claim a right to draw benefits.

"That's a very tricky issue," he said.

However, he also said it is difficult to justify paying benefits to the rich when there are thousands of elderly women across the country living on less than $5,000 a year.

The council report is based on a study of government social programs during the last 15 years. Norquay called it a radical shift in council policy.

In a brief to the committee, the council urged creation of a national organization to represent the needs of the elderly and develop policies to strengthen their standing in society.

The brief, written by economist David Ross, calls on governments to "ultimately" prohibit the forced retirement of those who want to work.

It recommends changes in age of retirement, income status of retirees and improvements in employment and social services for the retired.

The council says workers should be allowed to retire, with pension benefits, before or after age 65 which has become a widely-used, arbitrary cut-off date. Most private and public pension plans do not provide benefit payments until age 65.

The council says other factors should determine retirement age: Years already worked, will or desire to work, job skills and competence.

USC Tops '78 Goal: $3.9M

OTTAWA (CP) — The Unitarian Service Committee (USC) received $3,911,909 in funds and gifts in 1978, it was announced Monday.

The USC said in its annual review that the 1978 total exceeded its original goal.

The generosity of Victoria Times' readers contributed more than $32,000 to the total collected.

Founded in 1944 by Dr. Lotta Hitschmanova, the non-governmental agency provides funds and other aid to needy countries.

Federal and provincial grants totalled $778,271 but 80 per cent of all contributions came from ordinary citizens, the review said.

Snow Adds to U.K. Woe

Times News Services

LONDON — Striking locomotive drivers halted Britain's railroads for the third time in a week today which, coinciding with the worst blizzard in 15 years, left London virtually deserted.

"If you are still in bed, stay there," a BBC commentator told the public. "If not, go back to bed."

The blizzard blocked highways, closed airports, played havoc with bus and underground services.

Tens of thousands of commuters simply abandoned the effort to get to work and stayed home. Most stores and offices were manned only by skeleton staffs, if at all.

The railway shutdown, to be followed by still another Thursday, immobilized the strike-plagued nation even before it had recovered from a 24-hour walkout Monday for higher pay by 1.5 million local government workers.

Although the walkout should have ended early today, thousands of strikers — who are demanding a 40 per cent pay hike on their average $90 a week pay — stayed off the job.

Their unions threatened continued "guerrilla action" of lightning walkouts designed to make life as disagreeable as possible for the rest of the country.

The government estimated today that between 175,000 and 200,000 workers have been laid off so far as a result of an 11 days-old national strike by 100,000 truck drivers, which has blockaded ports and factories and hit food, raw materials and imports and exports.

About 30,000 angry strikers from all over the country held a protest rally in London and marched on Parliament, many chanting "all-out strike." Union leaders warned that disruptions will continue indefinitely in some areas.

Alan Fisher, general secretary of the National Union of Public Employees, warned of "widespread chaos" unless Prime Minister James Callaghan's Labor government approves a base rate of $120 for a 35-hour week for public service workers.

Shah Cancels Visit

Times News Services

Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi of Iran has decided to postpone indefinitely his planned visit to the United States because of President Jimmy Carter's apparent support for Ayatullah Khomeini, sources close to the monarch said today in Marrakech.

The shah and Empress Farah arrived there Monday to a low-key welcome from Morocco's King Hassan II. Moroccan officials said at the time the shah intended to remain in Morocco for about three days, then fly to the United States.

Members of the shah's entourage said there has been a change of plan, but it was not clear whether the shah intended to remain in Morocco or move to another country.

In Cairo, a spokesman for President Anwar Sadat said the Egyptian leader had invited the shah, who spent the first six days of his "vacation" with Sadat in Aswan, to return.

The spokesman said the shah accepted and told Sadat "he would be glad to spend most of his holidays in Egypt because he considers himself among his family."

Several other countries are being considered, the sources said, including Saudi Arabia, Britain and France.

Arafat In Power Struggle

DAMASCUS (Reuter) — Yasser Arafat is fighting for control of the Palestine Liberation Organization after guerrilla leaders ended a conference today with a bitter power struggle unresolved.

Conference sources said Arafat was being challenged by more radical leaders who want more say in policy-making on the PLO's executive committee.

Meanwhile, reports from Tel Aviv said Palestinian gunners in Lebanon attacked settlements in the northeastern part of the country.

The shelling came a day after a mysterious remote-control truck bomb in Beirut killed a top Palestinian guerrilla official and Arafat aide . (See page 3).

Donut King Probed

RCMP commercial crime officers have seized the books and records of Donut-King Restaurants Ltd., a Victoria-based company involved in franchising a fast-food marketing chain.

A police spokesman said today officers raided nine offices and residences in Victoria and a law office in Vancouver, all on Monday.

The spokesman declined to elaborate on the nature of the investigation but said the company's activities have been under investigation for nearly two months by the RCMP and latterly by Saanich police.

The company was incorporated on Dec. 2, 1977 by Demetrios Psyllakis, of 2576 Estevan.

Psyllakis said today he sold the company last June to George Sheldon Parkhurst, of 2777 Benson Place.

In the past year Donut-King has sold three franchises in Greater Victoria, as well as one in Duncan, Port Alberni and other points north on the Island.

Parkhurst, originally from Belleville, arrived in Victoria two years ago and has been involved in numerous development and franchise companies including Trizak Development, Ye Olde Kingston Car Company Ltd., 471 Trans Canada Holdings Ltd., Donut-King Restaurants Ltd., Donut-King Franchise Services Ltd., Ronvan Equipment Ltd., Ten Mile Developments Corp., and Sy's Chicken Shack Inc.

Tsehum Marina Expansion Killed

A controversial plan to expand a marina in Tsehum Harbor was killed Monday when North Saanich council voted unanimously to turn down all future applications for water leases in the area.

Oak Bay developer Bob Wright, who hoped to nearly double the size of his North Saanich Marina, said today he is extremely disappointed with the outcome.

But he said he will now press on with a plan to build houses on 22 acres of property adjacent to the harbor area.

Wright said he will apply to the B.C. Land Commission to have the land removed from the Agricultural Land Reserve. The property is already zoned for residential development on minimum half-acre lots.

"It's obviously a very desirable site," Westwood said.

Monday night's vote followed a close four-to-three decision by council to reject North Saanich Advisory Planning Commission's majority report on Wright's proposal.

The APC, in its report released two weeks ago, recommended limited marina expansion and cluster-type housing in the area.

Wright earlier promised to dedicate 12 acres of shorefront on Blue Heron Basin and Tsaykum Harbor to the municipality as park land if council approved the plan including an expansion of the marina from 350 berths to about 500 and construction of about 60 dwelling units on the remaining 10 acres.

Wright said, however, the offer will now be withdrawn.

"Obviously there will be no further offering of a nature sanctuary," he said.

"It's too bad. All of that land would have gone to the public as a gift and now it's been lost . . . at least in the short run."

Wright said Westwood had lost sight of the objectives of the development plan and had regarded it as a political fight.

"He (Westwood) showed he was not prepared to listen from day one," Wright said.

Westwood, however, defended the actions of council.

"We're just delivering what the people who elected us want," he said.

He denied the fight was political.

"I've no axe to grind with Wright or anyone. I'm doing what any good municipal politician should be doing . . . listening to the people."

. . . And Now Smoking Fines

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Health Minister Monique Begin announced Monday her department is drafting a bill to enforce non-smoking regulations in public transportation.

The bill, expected in two or three months, would give public carriers the responsibility of enforcing regulations about smoking in non-smoking areas, the minister told reporters.

Begin, who made the announcement at a press conference to kick off National Education Week on Smoking, said the proposed law would also allow carriers to fine customers for disobeying those regulations.

"To avoid creating criminal records for being caught in a non-smoking area with a cigarette, we will shift the responsibility to the carriers," he said.

A department spokesman said the amount customers could be fined has not yet been decided.

Begin, who kicked a pack-a-day habit two years ago, released statistics Monday showing that a majority of Canadians age 15 and older — 58 per cent of the population — are non-smokers.

The number of non-smokers has risen steadily from 50.2 per cent in 1965 and 55.3 per cent in 1974, she announced.

However, the number of teenage girls age 15 or older and adult women who smoke has remained fairly constant while it is men who have been renouncing the evils of nicotine.

Begin said that smoking among males age 20 and over has declined since 1965.

Americans Big on Maggie

By PAUL NICHOLSON
Times Staff

Americans make up almost 90 per cent of the passengers who ride the Princess Marguerite, says a study released today.

In fact, the number of Canadian passengers aboard the government-owned Seattle-to-Victoria ferry was so small — 6.9 per cent — that they were almost outnumbered by riders from the eastern U.S. states of New York, Pennsylvania and Massachusetts at 6.5 per cent.

The survey, taken during a week in mid-July, covered 1,859 persons and found 88.8 per cent were from the United States, 6.9 from Canada and 4.3 from other countries.

Surprisingly, most of the American passengers, 52.5 per cent, were from states other than Washington and Oregon.

The survey also determined 55 per cent of the passengers who boarded in Seattle returned the same day after spending an average of $15 per person in Victoria.

The 45 per cent who stayed one or more nights in Canada spent about $38 per person daily.

Of those interviewed, 98.8 per cent said they felt the fares were reasonable.

The satisfaction with the fare rates led the Vancouver firm that undertook the study to suggest that 1979 fares could increase without unduly affecting load factors.

Tourism Minister Elwood Veitch, however, has given no indication whether he will be recommending higher fares for the money-losing steamship.

Passenger traffic to Victoria on the Marguerite was up 12 per cent over the previous year and she carried six per cent more automobiles, 37 per cent more motorcycles and 26 per cent more bicycles.

The survey determined most hoteliers are apparently unaware that a significant percentage of the passengers remain one night or longer in Canada.

Last summer the Marguerite spent almost $350,000 in the Victoria area on food and beverage purchases and another $350,000 for the vessel's annual refit.

The Marguerite begins its 1979 season May 18.
